Pub Manager let go due to negligence

by Steve Viau

On Monday, March 14, 1994 George Kidd, Manager of the Blind Duck Pub was dismissed.

Vince DeMarinis, Vice President Finance of the Erindale College Student Union (ECSU), and Mary Kosta, ECSU President called a meeting with Kidd Monday afternoon to inform him that ECSU was not renewing his contract for reasons of negligence.

The specific details of what constitutes negligence have not been revealed; they were discussed in an In-Camera session during the ECSU meeting on Thursday, March 10, 1994.

When deciding whether or not to renew Kidd's contract, ECSU had two options. The first option put forth was that Kidd, DeMarinis, Kosta, Zahida Ibrahim (ECSU Secretary) and an external auditor sit down to go through the pub's affairs and if Kidd could not substantiate his actions he would immediately be notified of his release.

This was motioned but not seconded.

The second option was that Kidd be released as soon as a letter informing him could be drawn up. It was further decided that this would be Monday. This option was voted on and passed by a 7-1 margin.

According to Kidd's contract they were obligated to either give him thirty days notice of termination or to pay him an amount equivalent to thirty days pay if they chose to terminate him immediately. ECSU decided to pay Kidd the money owed him and terminate his employment immediately.

The University of Toronto Campus Beverage Service (CBS) was contacted to assist with the daily operation of the Blind Duck. Blind Duck Assistant Manager Brian Currie was given the option of taking over as temporary full-time manager, with assistance from Hugh Carson of CBS. Currie accepted and the Blind Duck is maintaining its regular hours of operation.

When spoken with Kidd chose not to comment.

After a heated race there could only be one SAC winner

SAC's new President, Gareth Spanglett. After a long election campaign, Gareth and his running mate came out on top. Gareth was quoted as saying, "I hope to do a good job. I've certainly made a number of promises... I hope I can bring it to fruition."

by Kevin Sager

University of Toronto's full-time undergraduate student body has a new leader. Gareth Spanglett, Arts and Sciences Student Union (ASSU) treasurer, has won the position of SAC President with 954 votes out of 2541, or 38% of the total, with his running mate Rupinder Ahluwalia from Scarborough.

Spanglett, who ran on a platform against joining the controversial lobby group OUSA, said that he was "thrilled" that the referendum had produced a clear "NO" result, with a total of 1548 votes over 977. When asked if he felt that the U of T would ever vote in favor of OUSA, Spanglett stated that he couldn't see it happening in the near future. "I find the whole thing counter-intuitive... I don't think it ever had a chance." The alliance's policies call for a rise in student tuition fees only if met with commensurate reform in student aid through the implementation of an Income-Contingent Loan Repayment Plan (ICLRP).

Spanglett said that SAC's role as a body independent of OUSA would consist of being a mediator between the students and the government, with emphasis placed on finding common ground around single issues such as funding for universities.

Spanglett has also promised he would devote the beginning of his presidency to getting the executive established; rearranging the funding arrangements between SAC and the various college councils (such as ECSU); and finding a clear picture of SAC's financial position.

With respect to Orientation, Spanglett said that he would get started "immediately." Furthermore, he stated, orientation would be done differently, with more involvement with the various colleges and faculties, whom he felt has been "given the short end of the stick" in the past.

Spanglett will also have dealt with the fallout from Ed deGale's resignation; specifically, the allegations of fraud and mishandling of SAC funds, as well as a "dubious" contract deGale signed on January 25 with a company formed on January 24. Stating that the investigations into deGale's legacy would be precedent-setting, Spanglett is adamant that they reach their eventual conclusion.

Similarly, Spanglett is committed to getting to the bottom of the murky situation concerning allegations that the Madho/Awadalla ticket were involved somehow in slanderous statements made about the Niles/Cardella ticket. "I gave my word that this would be followed through to the end... I personally was disgusted by the whole thing, and I feel it ruined the whole process."

In closing, Spanglett said, "I hope I do a good job. I've certainly made a number of promises... I hope I can bring it all to fruition."

How are your grades effecting your G.P.A.?

by Roland Kartick

'The distribution of grades in any course shall not be predetermined by any system of quotas that specifies the number or percentage of grades allowable at any grade level.' University Grading Practices Policy sec.II.5.a

Not many students are aware of the University Grading Practices Policy (UGPP) found at the end of the calendar, however they may have seen the effect it can have on their final mark in a course. That is, their mark was either increased or decreased through 'bell-curve'. In the majority of cases it is an increase, and since most students believe that their marks can't be decreased, they see no need to question the University's right to 'review, adjust and approve course grades recommended by instructors' (UGPP sec. II.1.c). However, this is where many students are mistaken.

According to the UGPP sections II.5.a and II.5.b, the number of grades allowable at any grade level shall not be predetermined; however, the division of Arts and Science can provide broad limits for the distribution of grades in a course. In subsequent paragraphs, the UGPP goes on to say that if the limits are exceeded, the department in which the course was taken and the Divisional Review Committee have the right to adjust the marks. Interestingly, the last sentence of sec.II.5.b is 'Each division shall make known in the divisional Calendar the existence of any such limits'. And contrary to this rule, none of the calendars published by the Division of Arts and Science mentions these limits.

The division of Arts and Science does have a document that contains this information, but it is intended for course instructors only. It is the Academic Handbook (AH), which is available to students and can be obtained from any Deans office. Under the section "Marks Review Process" the mark distribution for the division of Arts and Science can be found:

1. Grade 'A' between 5% and 25%
2. Grade 'A' and 'B' combined: not over 75%
3. Grade 'E' and 'F' combined: not over 20%

This distribution of grades is what the division expects from courses with an enrollment of at least 30 students, and if it is exceeded, the marks may be adjusted to conform to it. If a satisfactory explanation is given to the Department or Divisional Review Committee by the course instructor as to why the marks exceeded the limits, the marks remain unchanged. However, if 'the consequences of allowing the grades to stand would be injurious to the standard of the University, or the class in general' (UGPP sec. II.5.c), the marks will be adjusted. Adjustments can be up or down, and both have been done. Some departments have more rigorous limits for mark distributions, but they do not exceed the divisional limits (e.g. A's and B's combined: not over 50%).

When course marks are adjusted, it should be done 'in some reasonable manner which will bear equally upon all students in the course' according to the AH. Also 'This should be done with care and on a defensibly academic basis, since there is no other matter in this Handbook in which it is more certain that justice must not only be done, but seen to be done' (AH Pg 15). But what is justice for students? Take for example a hypothetical course in which the raw final marks are 50% E's and F's combined. Is it just to increase the marks so that they would then be 20% E's and F's, or should it be 15%, 10%, 5% or none? Also the converse is applicable. Take for example another hypothetical course in which there is 35% As. Should the final marks be adjusted so that there will be 25% As, or should there be 20%, 15%, 10% or 5% As. This is one question that students don't get to answer. The adjustment is usually done by the head of the department (continued on Page 4., look for grade restrictions) ...

Search committee for a new Erindale Principal to include students

Professor Desmond Morton has announced his acceptance of the post of director of the new Institute for the Study of Canada at McGill University, effective 1 July 1994.

Adel S. Sedra, Vice President and Provost of U of T, is calling for the nomination of individuals to serve on a search committee that will advise President Pritchard on the appointment of a new Principal for Erindale College.

According to the Perron rules, the committee shall consist of:

- The Vice-President and Provost or representative (chair);
- Three to five members of the teaching staff of College and/or those who teach in the College's programs;
- One to three students of the College;
- The Dean of the School of Graduate Studies or representative;
- The Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Science or representative;
- Two or three other qualified scholars from within the or outside this University, but outside the college; and
- A librarian, where appropriate.
- In addition, the committee may include and alumnus/a and one or two members of the administrative staff.

Nominations are to be sent to Provost Sedra's attention as Chair of the Search Committee by 8 April 1994.

Students unaware of grade restrictions

(who is also head of the departmental review committee) in which the course was taken.

According to section II.5.e of the UGPP, when marks are adjusted by a divisional committee, students will be informed and can request the reason, the methodology used and a description of the appeal process. However adjustment of marks by a divisional committee is rare, since most adjustments are done by a departmental review committee, and when this is done students do not have to be informed (see UGPP section II.5.f) and usually will not be. But when marks are adjusted by the department, students can obtain information about the adjustment from the Faculty Office (downtown). Curiously, the University gives students the right to request information on something about which they are not usually aware of.

In the future, students should contact the Faculty Office and find out if any of their courses has had its marks adjusted. If this did occur, they should see that justice was done. Unfortunately, students are not allowed to see the change in the mark distribution of the course; however we are allowed to see the formula used to adjust the marks, from which your raw mark can be calculated.

By examining it, one can see if it bore equally upon all students—that is, that your mark was not unfairly disadvantaged. Even a simple formula such as +4 percentage points can be unfair to some students. In this case, marks of 74% and 76% will increase to 78% and 80% respectively. The original 2 percent difference between the marks still remain, however the 74% mark gets a 0.3

grade point increase (B to B+), while the 76% mark gets a 0.7 grade point increase (B to A-), which clearly is unfair for the 74% mark. This is still the case if the marks differed by only 1 percent, that is 75% and 76%.

The university has the grading policy guideline to ensure that grades reflect the appropriate academic standards of the university. Although grades are a measure of the performance of students in an individual course, a student's final grade is usually a victory of the University's idea of appropriate academic standards.

Fake parking permits, counterfeit money and hate literature at Erindale

by Russell Williams

March 7th through the 10th gives a clear indication that crime is a common occurrence at Erindale College. During this short period counterfeiting, theft and even the distribution of hate literature took place on the campus. Additionally, as the academic year winds down, Erindale Police are urging increased vigilance to protect personal property from theft.

On March 7, Erindale Police discovered two vehicles displaying fraudulent parking permits. Both were towed from campus parking lots and the guilty drivers received a warning from Erindale police. A constable stated that neither owner was charged with a criminal offense, but as first time offenders were only subjected to paying the cost of towing. The constable made it clear that repeat offenders would be charged as would the distributors of forged permits. The fakes were produced by colour photocopier and were identified by imperfections and colour differences distinguishable from real permits.

Along a similar line, counterfeit money was used at the Harvey's Restaurant in the South Building on March 8. The counterfeit, reported when it reached a bank on March 10, was a twenty-dollar bill reproduced by colour photocopier. Constable Cameron Yardy of the University of Toronto Police felt that the individual that passed the note realized it was fraudulent and probably produced it as well. All restaurant staff have been made aware of the incident and are taking appropriate precautions.

Also on March 10, a student found his locker on level two of the South Building had been broken into and reported it to police at 1:00 PM. The lock had been broken off and was taken by the thieves. All the student's texts and notes were stolen, and with exams rapidly approaching this is a particularly vindictive crime. Police believe that someone may have seen suspicious activity, but failing to recognize the significance did not notify university police.

A crime Erindale Police are taking very seriously is the recent distribution of hate literature on campus. Erindale Police are continuing their investigation and are closely cooperating with Peel Police. A criminal investigations unit from Peel race relations is taking the incident very seriously and are sharing files with the Erindale Police. Erindale Constable Charles Helewa stated that the suspects, who cannot be named, have promised further distribution. P.C. Helewa urged that any student who sees such an act must contact the Campus Police immediately. Erindale Police stated that the individuals will be charged with incitement of hatred when they are apprehended.

Obviously, police cannot be everywhere at once and during the interview Constable Helewa suggested that students have a social responsibility to each other. Helewa said that people at least have a duty to contact police and let them know a crime is occurring and the location. The Erindale police wish to make it known that if a person fears becoming involved, any information can be given anonymously. If students cooperate and act as a community, rather than abetting criminal acts by ignoring them, their altruism will become a deterrent.

On a positive note, P.C. Charles Helewa stated that students of all religious backgrounds showed great credibility by destroying the hate literature directed against Muslim students that they found on campus boards.

Who are you going to vote for?

by Kevin A. Sager

ECSU hopefuls lined up for public approval on Wednesday March 16, in the hopes of winning the coveted Presidential position. Although most of those in attendance were merely spectating, the cheers elicited by certain candidates made it clear that large portions of the audience were partisan.

First to speak was Italian Club President Mike Caccamo, who stated that he was committed to an "effective restructuring" of ECSU's operations. Caccamo made promises of placing a high priority on constitutional integrity, and stated that he wanted to make students more informed of campus events through better communication and a weekly newsletter. "I feel that you have the right to know where your money is going," he concluded.

Steve Taylor, currently ECSU Academic Director, outlined his experience serving on the Erindale College Council (ECC), Quality Services to Students (QSS), Tri-Campus planning, and felt that having served on these various boards would be beneficial to him as president. Taylor, who emphasized "teamwork, accessibility, and communication", also said that working against student apathy was one of his goals.

Next to make a case for himself was Murtaza Bhujwalla, ACE (Association of Collegiate Entrepreneurs) President and member of the Ontario Federation of South Asian Students (OFSAS). Stating that he wanted to get to "the business at hand", Bhujwalla stated that he had conducted a survey of what students felt were important issues. Among these were creating a more diverse job fair and lobbying the provincial government on tuition policy (normally SAC's pervue).

Lastly, ECSU VP Vince DeMarinis spoke his piece.

DeMarinis, who has been a member of ECSU for three years, felt that among his accomplishments during this period were sold-out concert events at the Pub (such as the Razorbacks) and putting out Erindale's very first yearbook. DeMarinis promised to improve the radio station through an FM license, address racism through a multicultural task force, and further, to protect "the smokers who are fighting for their rights."

The vice-presidential candidates then made their appeals to the voters. Sandro Cosentino, apparently taking a cue from Ross Perot, started by saying that he considered himself a businessman rather than a politician. After stating that his main qualification for the job was his education, Cosentino stated that he was "well-schooled for the position," having been an accountant for his family's business and Treasurer for the Italian Club. Cosentino also pledged to make ECSU's spending policies open to anyone who wanted to know, summing up his approach as being, "full financial management with an eye towards profitability".

Nick Panou, presently ECSU Clubs Director, also expressed his intention, if elected, to "make all undergraduate students understand where we stand financially." Running on a ticket with Steve Taylor, Panou stressed "more visibility" in the Meeting Place, as well as restructuring the Pub, as being among his intentions if elected. Citing as credentials his involvement in the Liberal Club, the Green Committee, and his knowledge of accounting, Panou stated that he had both experience and leadership qualities.

The question and answer period which followed was an opportunity for the candidates to react under fire.

Most of the questions were generic in nature, however several seemed to be directed at Vince DeMarinis who fielded them quite well.

Students are encouraged to cast their ballots this week on Wednesday and Thursday, in both the North and the South buildings, and vote for the candidates you feel would best represent the school population.

Congratulations Tamara. You have a hard road ahead of you, but with dedication and an open mind you can do it. Good Luck. I can't believe I missed the Pogues on St. Paddy's Day. What a drag. Kevin was deathly ill. Thanks to Tamara, Lloyd and Jen for filling in. Recompense will be made. We're broke but I would like to have a staff get-together or end of year party of some sort. We could do the brunch thing again at the Fox. They agree to it, so? I hope the ECSU elections aren't ignored, it's important that everyone take part - especially this year. The candidates are so varied; one is strong while the others are all unappealing in their own way. What a gorgeous day; the sun was shining and the birds were chirping. Spring is coming. Woohoo. Manfred, you were looking pretty hot after those Juno Awards. Now you have your token blurb mention. That'll be $5. High Park and the Annex; both of my preferred choices are somewhat expensive. Miss you M.

Oh, was there an election on?

Every year there are editorials in student papers espousing the merits of involvement, talking about the importance of not passively watching the year go by, and vilifying the evil of apathy.

The percentage of students who voted in last week's ECARA election is pathetic; unfortunately the percentage of students who properly make use of the facilities is also minimal. SAC Erindale Directors are perennially acclaimed; coincidentally, SAC Erindale's visibility is generally very low. However, ECSU has the potential to affect almost every student. This makes it even more important that the upcoming (Wednesday and Thursday) ECSU elections are not ignored. Last year only 769 students bothered to vote. It is foolish to believe that 769 students can elect a council truly representative of the entire school's population. So, once again a student scribe is preaching to the masses: Your vote is valuable; don't waste it.

This year there was only one acclamation. This bodes well for the future of ECSU. Perhaps enough interest was generated by this year's council's general lack of visibility. Hopefully the trend shown by prospective candidates will be continued at the polls. Assuming that there is a strong turn-out at the polls, medium II hopes that the voters are making informed choices. For this reason we would like to offer our opinion on the position of ECSU President; the position that has the greatest bearing on the success of the incoming council.

Key factors in a strong Presidential candidate are ideas, experience, dedication and motivation. These are among the qualifications of Vince DeMarinis. Some examples of his work that directly pertains to ECSU are listed to demonstrate his varied abilities and his merit. DeMarinis started the Erindale College Yearbook against a wall of critical outcry. Despite being told that it would never fly because this is not a high school he persisted; it is now a full-fledged part of ECSU, covering every aspect of life at Erindale.

Recently there have been a couple of incidents of religious discrimination. DeMarinis immediately set up a meeting with the administration to implement a 'multi-cultural committee' to help deal with such situations. Instead of vague, futuristic promises he acted and we will see the results next year. As President he would best be able to ensure this committee's successful follow through. In his three years on ECSU DeMarinis has realized where improvement is needed and has offered concrete solutions. The importance of this experience can not be downplayed. DeMarinis' visibility and dedication have been evident over the last three years, especially this past year as a member of the ECSU executive. DeMarinis has earned the support of the students he serves.

is intending to run a referendum next year expanding the size of our Board of Directors to nine students. We would like to include one representative from ECSU, ECARA and Residence Council along with four elected members of the full-time undergraduate student population. The medium II Editor in Chief and Business Manager would be appointed positions. The referendum will not be held until September but we would like your input. If you have a complaint, suggestion or, unlikely as it may be, a compliment, please bring it to us in Room F18 in the Crossroads Building. Ask for Steve or Tamara.

You're no better reader says

Dear Editor;

I am writing to comment on Tamara Wickens' articles on the ECARA Elections. It seems to me that Tamara feels that the Medium II election process is far more fair than ECARA's/

In the ECARA elections the positions are opened, advertised and then closed. If only one candidate applies they are acclaimed. Tamara suggests that the position be opened for a further 4 days to get another candidate. Is this process fair? Do you want someone on a council who would only run when they new who their opposition was? Wouldn't you want a candidate who could meet the First deadline and was committed to the position, someone who was not enticed to run because they thought they could beat the other person or disliked the candidate? I am opposed to the extension period. Tamara states that "ECARA's constitution does not have any conditions in it which prevent acclamations of unqualified candidates." Is it that Tamara thinks that the acclaimed positions were all filled by unqualified candidates? 4 of this years acclaimed positions were filled by present members of ECARA council. The other two will be first year council members. However, one of those candidates ran for ECARA council last year. I think Tamara dislikes someone who filled a certain position it was not that they were unqualified. All the acclaimed positions were filled by qualified candidates.

Let us now look into Medium II's so called better election procedures. The medium II better election procedures. The medium II is supposed to be the "Erindale College student voice", yet you could be elected to the Medium II editorial board without even being a student. To get a vote on who is elected to the student newspaper, you must submit and have published a minimum amount of articles. You need not be a student to submit these articles and therefore you could end up with non students voting for a student paper. Less than 100 people will be voting for the Medium II positions. With close to 7000 students only .01% of the students or non students will get to vote in the Medium II elections. Medium II will publish the list of voters in this issue. If you know any of these people you must tell them how to vote because this .01% of the student body is your voice on who is elected to the Medium II staff for next year.

Medium II's accept or reject clause is a joke. The same .01% vote on the accept or reject policy. Let the whole student paper vote on the elections. A student paper getting funding by students that lets less than 1% of the students vote: whose election policies are out of touch with the students?

Join the club at Radio Erindale One student's wish to have a private hangout

Dear Editor;

Me and a small group of my friends here at Erindale College have decided that we need someplace to hang out, smoke, drink, and play our brand of music REAL LOUD, the thing is we can't afford our own taste in music and renting a place is expensive. That's why I am whiting to you. I need your help to get SAC to support us. It will cost an initial $20,000 to set up app. $4/student, but will run for a modest $20,000/year (another $4/student). We also have come up with a name for our exclusive members club we'll call it "RADIO ERINDALE II".

That's right, we already support a hangout club at Erindale, and it's called "Radio Erindale." Each student at Erindale pats $4.00 from your student fees to support this radio station, and what do get in return? Well for starters, loud (CRAPPY) music in spegal hall, jokes about woman's issues, gays and other politically incorrect statements, and a whole lot more!

Now, at the end of a school year it is time to hire new staff for the next year, but where does the radio station turn to advertise the positions? Could it be to the listening audience, NO, they haven't even made an advert or announcement about the none positions available. They chose to advertise in the MEDIUM II! and have since received 7 applications out of the thousands of students at Erindale. This leads me to believe that there is (1) No interest in a radio station at Erindale, (2) Poor advertising of the positions, and /or (3) The present management wants to keep the old boys club together and new applications are trashed!

I hope the new student counsel will kick Radio Erindale in to shape or out of existence. The $20,000.00 spent on this albatross would be better spent on other student issues.

Career Centre needs longer hours

Dear Editor:

Being March, many students are now seeking work for the summer.

It is well known that competition for jobs is very fierce. In addition, the prospect of landing a job is scarce.

At a time when students are most anxious about the state of employment they must turn to the Career Centre for help in their job search. The centre offers a variety of useful services to students throughout the year. However, I question the logic behind operating on hours from that are so limited. Can the Career Centre at Erindale College accommodate the influx of students by extended their office hours?

Presently the Career Centre is opened from 10-12 p.m. and 1-3:30 p.m. These times are peak class times for the majority of students. By the time classes are over, the Career Centre is closed and students are SOL. I request that the Career Centre hours be changed to accommodate the peak hours for students. Although Monday's hours are from 1p.m- 7p.m., this is not enough. In such desperate times for students, the Career Centre should extend their office hours every day. After all, the centre exists for our use.

Continued propegation of hate literature must stop

Dear Editor;

Folks, we're in for one helluva ride. Again last week flyers describing Muslims, this time as products of malignant genetics, were found near Spigel Hall in the South Building.

The author candidly mentioned that it was displeasing to see the flyers being removed so soon. However, it is more important to note that these flyers were printed in yellow, so as to directly mimic the MSA originals. The attempt to imitated the real thing is a sign of how frustrated our author feels as such propaganda attempts are backfiring. There is much surprise and growing support amongst students that such as act could occur and the desire to find the culprit.

The most terrifying line from this letter indicates the author is definitely watching and perhaps actively stalking Muslims on campus. It was written: Why are all Allah's disciples ashamed of the truth...Why are all Akbars meeting in the Meeting Place on Monday, March 7, and he said "At least he said make Ramadan an international holiday"...Will this piece of sh— shut his mouth before Allah forces him to marry his cousin. (author didn't even say please).

Again, the flyer setup was similar to the last-there were thought out paragraphs and it included the infamous, and soon to be copyright, MSA letterhead.

The author promised that yet another flyer would appear this week (possibly today) expressing satire on the issue of polygamy. I hope the author read my column from last week and takes heed from the strong condemnation given by E.C.S.U. candidates for crimes committed against any group.

Living in peace and harmony with cultures and faiths other than our own provides and opportunity to better understand events that occur around the world because we have first-hand knowledge of any people. Too bad we take this relationship for granted.

At this juncture, we should remember the name Valery Fabrikant. Fabrikant, former Engineering Professor at Concordia University, is currently serving life in prison for the cold-blooded murder of his colleagues. Before resorting to violence, he was actively sending them hate mail by computer. Let it be known to everyone-the writing's on the wall.

Name withheld at author's request

Editor's Note: It is important to again add an Editor's note to this letter describing a follow-up occurrence in this despicable situation. Having beliefs directly opposite to someone else's, especially of a religious nature is common. Expressing them in public is an accepted freedom. However, the active spread of anonymous hate-literature is vile and contemptible. Erindale has always seemed to be a secluded suburban haven, free of excessive hatred and home to a myriad of cultures. The bonds of goodwill seem to be dissipating across U of T and Erindale is no exception. If for any reason you feel strongly about someone else's religion or the actions of members of a certain religion why not talk to the person or group in question. Humour is a valid form of expression but the flyers which have been posted in the last two weeks are not humorous in the least - they are the sick product of a closed mind. If you see anyone posting flyers that don't seem quite right don't hesitate to contact the campus police.

Library madness

I had a series of libraries to visit at the downtown campus. I even had a plan of attack. Little did I know what was looming ahead of me on the fateful day.

I started out at the Science and Medicine library, found a couple of articles, with the main volume of journal articles that I need missing off the shelf, of course. Fair enough I thought, and I went truckin' through the fresh-fallen snow to the Knox library. To my relief, I found two journals I needed. Half way through photocopying the first article, the photocopier broke down.

The librarian was nice enough to take me to the only other photocopier in the building, also out of order. I was directed to the Emanuel library where I could find the same articles so that I could copy them there. I arrived there to find the periodical section unavailable to the public and under construction. Luckily, the librarians were retrieving journals for patrons. However, their photocopier was also broken down. I had to sign out the journals and take them to the Pratt library for copying. I was so exasperated when I walked into the Pratt library that when I went to the info booth to ask where the "nearest available photocopier" was, the librarian (to my embarrassment) pointed out that they were right in front of me.

After returning the journals to the Emanuel library, I ran to my final stop: Robert's (with 25 min to go before the 12:15 shuttle bus was to leave for Erindale).

At Robert's I was getting funny looks from people in the elevator. My face was red, very sweaty, and I was still trying to catch my breath. I found the call number alright, but the book wasn't there! Does any of this sound familiar? (I did make the shuttle bus though.)

DeMarinis has good intentions

Basically I am writing this letter in support for Vince DeMarinis and his campaign for ECSU President. I met Vince at the beginning of this school year and he and I have become quite good friends. I have no problem in saying that he will do anything for his friends when they are need. Vince has a strong desire to succeed with good intentions and I feel he is the best person for ECSU President.

Richard Norris
Survey Science Club President

DeMarinis' Experience Counts

My comments will be directed to ECSU & the upcoming presidential elections. I have the pleasure of knowing all four candidates that are running and commend them for getting involved at Erindale in an effort to become student leaders.

It is difficult for me to recommend only one candidate for president, but I think that when you consider all the relevant facts one student stands alone.

Vince DeMarinis has been a member of ECSU every year for his entire university career (3 yrs.). I believe that his experience on ECSU will be a stabilizing factor & will bring continuity to the entire team. Vince will know his role as president & the role of everyone else on ECSU. This will avoid alot of confusion, especially at the beginning of the year, & throughout everyones term.

Furthermore, he has dealt with the administration in the past. In my opinion they have already established a good working relationship & consequently, there will be no need for a "getting-to-know-you" period. This will result in fast and effective problem resolution & event planning.

A second thing to consider is Vince's character. This is an individual who came to Erindale with more school spirit than anyone I have ever known. For example, his involvement include: QSS, ECC, Ball Hockey, Italian Club, Celtic Club, DJ, House parties, etc. This is just a small list of his many extracurricular activities & pass times that reveal his participation at all levels (As a student representative & social leader).

Lastly, Vince is concurrently making crucial decisions & solving difficult problems at ECSU this year as VP Finance. Basically, this means that he is already leading the organization that he wishes to lead next year. It's obvious that this is invaluable experience for a potential president to have.

For the above reasons I think it is crystal clear that an informed vote for ECSU President will be for Vince DeMarinis
Tom DiEmanuele

DeMarinis Highly Competent

I'm dropping this short letter to advise you that, as an agent and manager of many performers, having dealt with every Student union of campuses across the country, I have seldom had the pleasure to deal an entertainment coordinator the calibre of Vince Dimairinis.

It's been especially rewarding, since having dealt with entertain-at Erindale for a small part of the 17 years we have been in the business of servicing campuses, because of the high standards and good business acumen I have encountered in dealing with Vince. This, I must tell you is a refreshing change from the usual assortment of airheads I have had to deal with in not only your campus, but the great majority of others. I feel it incumbent on me to express my total confidence in him as a competent administrator. We at the agency have always tried to stay above board in a highly competitive field, and even though we haven't done a great deal of business with Erindale as compared with others, the limited amount of interaction with Vince in this business shows me that there IS hope, after all, that you can operate honestly and with integrity, despite the fact that 99% of the people elected to the student unions across Ontario have no concept of these values. Believe me, I will write a book one day of the horror stories I have encountered with school personell!

In short, I conclude with Kudos for a guy well-suited as president. It's really been my pleasure to express these views since I have yet to find another similar situation in my professional dealings with the faculties of higher education. Hope you will appreciate my sincere two bits for what it's worth. Regards.

DeMarinis Great Organizer

To the Editor,

Under normal circumstances, none of the members of the band I'm in would consider endorsing a political candidate of any kind. Our political views are too different to agree on most important issues. However, we would like to take this opportunity to encourage Erindale students to consider voting for Vince DeMarinis for ESCU President. As avid music fans and participants in Band Clash, we have had the opportunity to watch Vince at work. Since Vince has been on council, Erindale has seen a definite improvement in the quality of live entertainment provided for the students. In the past two years, National Velvet, Crash Vegas, The Lowest of The Low, The Tea Party have all had successful concerts on campus, all of which were completely or at least partly organized by Vince.

Vince has also treated students band with a great deal of respect. He has invited Wrench, The Pseudo-Blues Band, Threnody and other great Erindale bands to participate in concerts with name acts in order to help further their careers. What we are trying to say is that Vince has always put the students first and sacrificed a great deal of time and energy in order to ensure the success of these kinds of events. He has restored Erindale's reputation as the most important musical venue in the city. That in itself is no small achievement: if he can do anywhere near this well as President, then he is certainly worth voting for.

Sincerely,

John Anczurowski, Male Order Brides.

We Want Mor

Dear Editor;

The person who fulfils the position of ECSU President needs to be responsible, dependable, and committed. MURTAZA (MOR) BHUJWALLA has shown to that he has these characteristics. His past experiences have given him invaluable leadership skills that the President of ECSU should possess. Murtaza has worked extensively with ECSU and students during his years at Erindale. Vote for the student most qualified for the position Murtaza (Mor) Bhujwalla

Taylor and Panou For You

We are writing in strong support of the Presidential and Vice-Presidential ticket, Steve Taylor and Nick Panou, for the upcoming E.C.S.U. elections.

STEVE TAYLOR is the current academic director at E.C.S.U. and the BEST academic director the Erindale College Student Union has seen in years. Steve produce the Annual Rating of Courses this year, was an instrumental part in the organization of Academic orientation, was involved in the planning and initial preparations to make the student centre finally a reality for the students of Erindale in the near future and most recently helped put out a survey to get YOUR OPINIONS regarding student services, because he feels your opinions COUNT!. Do we need to say more? Actually we can, but we'd rather you look for the opinions of more than just us. We are sure we are not the only one's who feel this way and we suspect you will read more about Steve in the medium II and see what we are talking about throughout the campaign.

NICK PANOU is the current clubs administrator at ECSU. It has been a long time since ECSU has seen someone more dedicated and productive. Nick has created and implemented policies at ECSU such as revising the clubs handbook, reorganizing and restructuring of recognition procedures for all clubs on campus and was instrumental in obtaining two additional rooms in the Crossroads building by ECSU for clubs meeting space and general club lounge space. Nick is always accessible, responsive and responsible to the clubs and students who put him in the Clubs Administrator seat! Nick not only was President of his high school student union at Applewood Heights Secondary but he is the Liberal club Vice-President, executive member of the Greek club, member of Erindale College Council and member of the Green committee. His best asset is he is in the Commerce specialist program with an Economics major bringing real knowledge to ECSU with practical commerce experience.

We know Steve Taylor and Nick Panou are by far the most dedicated, responsible and overall qualified candidates for the job! Most importantly a President and Vice-President have to work together! Steve and Nick have obviously worked in conjunction with each other in the past and are the only two candidates comfortable enough with each other to run as a ticket.

Cack your Moe

It is the distinct pleasure of the Italian Club of Erindale to support Mike Caccamo as a candidate for the position of ECSU President. All of his life, Mike has been oriented towards enriching the lives of others. He lives by the philosophy that one must undertake a conscious effort to participate in society. He has demonstrated this effort through his involvement on Erindale Campus, the university as a whole and the greater community.

Mike has contributed diligently on an extra-curricular level throughout the university. He serves as Chairperson of the Erindale College Student Union, a member of the Erindale College Council, a member of the Erindale College Teaching Awards Committee, as well as Chairperson of the Green Committee that serves to unite administration, all student governments, clubs and committees at the Erindale Campus. Mike has also sat on the Student Endowment Award Committee, as well as served as a scrutineer for an ECSU by-election.

Mike has displayed many significant contributions to the Italian community at Erindale and the university as a whole. As two-time (Co-) President of the Italian Club of Erindale, Mike has spear-headed a number of initiatives dedicated towards enhancing and enriching positive on-campus, inter-campus and off-campus relations.

Mike's involvement extends far beyond the university community. Mike is one who depicts and exemplifies dedication, commitment, leadership and knowledge to the utmost level. He has demonstrated through his involvement in the various committees and organizations to be an asset, not only to the Erindale Campus, but also to the university and the greater community. He is an inspiration to his peer and dedicated to the betterment of university life.

Arnocki 1

Dear Erindale Students,

As president of the Erindale Portuguese Students' Association (E.P.S.A.), and on behalf of all members I extend the support of our organization to Greg Arnocki who is campaigning for the position of E.C.S.U. Public Relations Director.

We feel that Greg is qualified for this office because of his academic background, his experience, and his personal qualities. Greg is a Sociology student at Erindale, and we feel that his knowledge in this field will enable him to evaluate E.C.S.U. as an organization, to assess problem areas, and to establish goals which will put Erindale on the map. Greg's past experience as Service Director for S.A.C. has prepared him to fill the position of E.C.S.U. Public Relations Director skillfully and efficiently. It has given Greg an advantage because he already has a firm understanding of responsibility and devotion to Erindale students. As representative for S.A.C. Greg has several of E.P.S.A. and I.C.E. (Italian Club of Erindale) events. For those of us who know him personally, we all agree that Greg has qualities which will promote his success in office. Greg is approachable, open-minded, mature, responsible, self-motivated, sincere, and a leader among students.

For all the above reasons we feel that Greg Arnocki is the prime candidate for E.C.S.U. Public Relations Director. Sincerely,

Nelia Amaral,
E.P.S.A. President

I'm writing this letter because I would like those Erindale students, who haven't yet had a chance to meet Greg Arnocki personally, to know a little bit more about Greg's personality and why he would make an excellent representative of the student body on E.C.S.U. I've known Greg for a little over two years, and the first thing that comes to mind when thinking about him is that he is trustworthy, and responsible. He's the kind of person who makes "friends for life", and it is for this reason that it doesn't surprise me that he has so many friends. Among them, he is constantly known for caring about other people even those whom he hardly knows.

Greg is also very approachable, and I think that it is the combination of these two qualities that make him the ideal choice for Public Relations Director. During the 1992-1993 school year, Greg served as Service Director on S.A.C., and I think it should be said that Public Relations is the career that Greg has chosen to pursue. This tells us two things about why we should vote Greg Arnocki for Public Relations. First voters will know that Greg has the right academic qualifications for such work, and secondly we know that Greg will put his heart into his work, and put forth every effort to ensure that he does the best possible job for Erindale. There isn't a risk when voting for Greg Arnocki for Public Relations Director, so make your vote count!

Sincerely
Melissa MacFarlane

Honesty and Caring Common Link for Arnocki Letters

Dear Editor,

I am a fourth year student at Erindale, and am presently acquiring a double major in English and Environmental Science. In my first year, Erindale's social aspects encouraged me to choose it as my campus. In all the campuses that I have ever visited, each has lacked the unity of the students that we enjoy; but things have changed and I am concerned.

It is my concern for E.C.S.U. that has prompted me to write to you today. In my four years at Erindale I have felt that E.C.S.U. has not effectively promoted our college to its students, and local area of Mississauga.

I find that the problem stems from our past elected officials of E.C.S.U. The reason why I feel this way is because there is a lack of concern demonstrated by these officials for our Erindale community. It is up to the elected officials, specifically of the office of Public Relations director, to promote Erindale to its students and local area.

Now I believe there is a solution: Greg Arnocki. I have known Greg since my first year at Erindale, and consider him a reliable. It is his honesty, his concern for his friends, and his concern for Erindale that has made me his friend. These qualities above all make Greg the best candidate for the office of Public Relations.

Greg's appointment to Service Director of S.A.C. in the 1992-1993 academic year has shown that he is a reliable member of office. I know Greg is ready for the challenge that E.C.S.U. presents, and I know that Greg will be accessible to all our fellow students to make the 1994-1995 academic year the best Erindale has had.

I strongly urge all students to vote on March 23 and 24 next week, and when they do I strongly urge them again to vote Greg Arnocki for the office of Public Relations director.

Sincerely Yours
Angelo Di Mondo

Kheriba Already Involved

Matt Kheriba is a new student to Erindale College and in his short time here has already done a great deal for the student body. Matt has founded and created two clubs at Erindale, the Palestinian Issues and the Arab clubs.

Matt Kheriba has been an active participant on E.C.S.U. this year. Matt has attended meetings, participated in the planning and implementation of services and events for E.C.S.U. Most importantly Matt Kheriba has worked and been guided closely by Nick Panou, the current Clubs Administrator and as such knows the position, its potential problems and ways to improve services. It is clear that Matt Kheriba is not only interested in the position but knows the position well. It is this kind of dedication that we feel will create a better E.C.S.U. for a better quality of service in 1994-1995.

We know MATT KHERIBA is the best candidate FOR CLUBS ADMINISTRATOR and we are sure he will prove it.

Sincerely,
Edlin Cotran, Palestinian Students Association.
Demetri Bouras, E.C.S.U. Public Relations Director.
Vera Angel, Arab Students Association Director.
Vickie Lianos, S.A.C. Erindale Vice-Chair.

Douzenis Has Plan

The position of Advertising and employment director involves a hard working dedicated individual, committed to serving Erindale. This individual must enter office with a planned agenda with an idea of where they will take the school. The Advertising and Employment director will have to improve the current situation of abandoned information boards, while also introducing new ideas. Open and accessible to all, this individual must be a team player, because he will have to get along and work with the team of ECSU DIRECTORS. Nick Douzenis best fulfills the requirements of Advertising and Employment director. He has promised up to date info. boards, a new portable info board and equal job opportunities for students, keeping them informed of all openings. Nick Douzenis is the candidate for the position. He has a plan that encompasses his promises and is ready for implementation. His plan is logical, effective, flexible and open to all. ELECT ECK TO ECSU! THE MAN WITH THE PLAN! Go With Gallo

To the Editor,

We, The Italian Club of Erindale would like to publically express our support for John Gallo, candidate for the positions of Clubs Administrator. During his time in office as Co-President in 1993-1994, and Vice-President in 1992-1993 of ICE, John has demonstrated his interpersonal, organizational and leadership skills and carried himself in a professional manner at all times. Through his work with the Italian Club, the largest social-cultural club on campus, John has gained valuable experience and knowledge of the inner workings of a club, which gives him the background required to fulfill the portfolio of Clubs Administrator successfully and diligently.

John has displayed such noteworthy characteristics through his endeavors which have led him to enhance the experiences of the Italian Club members and the University as a whole. It is for these reasons that we strongly believe John Gallo is not only enthusiastic, but also an appropriate candidate for Clubs Administrator. Respectfully yours,

Cookbook lacking

Dear Editor,

In your desperate attempts to offer a spicy broth to your readers, your main editorial delight last week was flavoured by nothing but a rich melange of half-truths and innuendos. Indubitably, it is the mental produce of far too many late production nights combined with a fine sprinkling of prozac-driven indignation.

You mention that I, Shinan Govani, just "happened to be at the newspaper" on the night that Associate Editor Julie Rezvani was working on a story about SAC presidential candidate Sarah Niles.

Had the medium II bothered to peek past page 1 of that particular issue they would have unearthed the shocking fact that I wrote a story on page 2 and that I probably needed to go to the paper was not a tantalizing side-order to the main dish of scandal that you were trying to concoct last week. It was not a contrived manoeuvre on my part. There was no conspiracy.

I do not deny that I am friends with Ms. Rezvani, nor do I deny that I write quite regularly for the newspaper. That is no secret. Nor do I deny that I was involved as one of the chief campaign organizers for both Andrea Madho and Dan Awadalla. That is no secret.

As for the myriad of allusions and suggestions that you draw in your venomous "editorial", there is no truth to any of it. Neither myself nor anyone on the Madho/Awadalla campaign were involved in the fabrication of either the original letter directed against Ms. Niles or the article written subsequently by Ms. Rezvani about it. There was no foul play. None. All such traces of conspiracy that you allude to are absolutely unsubstantiated and categorically false. You are wrong.

Quite simply, my beloved Viau, your editorial recipe for campaign shenanigans succeeded in giving me and countless others an enormous amount of indigestion. Get a new cookbook.

Who are you to judge, reader asks

To the Editor:

I simply cannot understand how the medium II could be so hypocritical! In last week's editorial you condemned the newspaper for using anonymous sources (which by the way they were not), while the evidence you provided in your editorial consisted of two anonymous sources as well.

You have listed all sorts of pints as if they were fact, without giving Julie Rezvani an opportunity to respond. You claim that Rezvani had a conversation with an individual the day of the forum at Erindale and do not admit that this individual was David Amato (as the Varsity has mentioned in a private interview with Rezvani).

Furthermore, Mr. Viau, you allege that another individual has claimed that the individual admitting to write the letter did not. Again it is not mentioned who this individual is, or why she believes that the person who has come forward would lie.

I question your JOURNALISTIC INTEGRITY, Mr. Viau. You presented your editorial based on comments only from Jennifer Cardella, and Sarah Niles. I certainly do admit that perhaps it may not have been in the best of taste for Rezvani to print an article based on not "an anonymous source", but a source who wished to have her name withheld, but at least she got the other side of the story.

You, Mr. Viau clearly wrote with a bias, failing to mention that perhaps there was another side to the story. Although your piece was an editorial and not a story it does not excuse the fact that you have a responsibility to be accountable to the students by presenting both sides.

Mr. Viau, not only was your piece clearly there to support your hidden agenda, as your friendship with Cardella is no secret, but also there to illustrate that being editor for two years has taught you absolutely nothing about journalism. Ms. Rezvani simply reported on a letter for which she had a tangible source who has now decided to come forward.

If Ms. Miles abstained on the crucial issue of the Heritage Front assembling on U.C.

Property, and the minutes from the meeting in which this occurred have supposedly been lost on the computer files, anyone, especially a journalist, should be permitted to question WHY?

If Mr. Dan Robertson, Miles' Campaign Manager, attended a Republican Conference held in Houston a few years ago specifically to support Pat Buchanan, should a journalist not be permitted to relay this information to her readers?

At least Ms. Rezvani has, in the course of the last few months, cracked some of the biggest stories that even The Varsity has failed to report on. You, on the other hand, Mr. Viau, have had consistent difficulty with filling the white pages of your news section with something other than glorifying "features" on Harvey's.

Sincerely

Amber Lee Malik

Editor's Note: At the time of the newspaper's printing the story the 'source' of the anonymous letter was not yet known.

Canada's annual Juno awards held yesterday, March 20, at Toronto's O'Keefe Centre. Performers such as Michelle Wright, Jim Cuddy, Celine Dion, Roch Voisine a part of this year's musical awards presentation.

The M.C. for the evening was French-Canadian Roch Voisine. He performed the first live performance and set the mood of enjoyment and excellent live performances for the evening.

The good of the 1994 Juno Awards

Many different groups were up for nomination. The show began with 26 awards that were not aired on T.V. Unfortunately awards such as best new group (the Waltons), best video (Jann Arden) and single of the year (the Rankin Family) were included in these off-air ceremonies. It would have been in the Juno producers best interest to include these awards on air.

Eleven awards were aired, the more favorable awards. Best male vocalist was won by Roch Voisine who competed with Snow, John McDermott, Daniel Lanois and Stef Carse. Best female vocalist was won by Celine Dion; she was very excited about this award and told the crowd how happy she was to be a Canadian. Of the other nine, the best was saved for last. Canadian Entertainer of the Year nominees included Barenaked Ladies, Celine Dion, The Rankin Family, The Tragically Hip, and Michelle Wright; the award went to a band classified as country, but has a very unique sound that can't be singly placed in country, the Rankin Family.

The aired portion of the show was much more exciting than the off-air performance. Although it was more captivating from where I was sitting in the media room, I did not see a lot. We were all ushered into a room that held approximately one hundred personnel were forced to view the proceedings going on in the room next door on a series of six small television screens. When an award had been presented, the winners were brought into the media room and journalists were given the opportunity to ask those ever pressing questions about which they had always wondered.

One drawback was during this question and answer period, the television screens sound system was turned off. Thus, it was difficult to know which band or artist had won until they appeared from behind the curtain (also, the live performance of Blue Rodeo was missed due to a question period with Rush).

An excellent asset to the evening was Rush's induction into the Hall of Fame. The presentation for Rush included words of encouragement from such Canadians as Mike Myers, Sebastian Bach and Sam (owner of Sam the Record Man). All offered memories of how Rush had made a difference in their lives or musical career.

All in all the show, what I saw of it, was pretty good. The performers answered all questions fielded at them by the press and exuded happiness at winning a Juno Award. One negative aspect to the evening was that Colin James did not perform.

There were a myriad of thoughts that drifted in and out of my mind as I sat in a catatonic, zombie-like state at this year's Juno Awards. The Canadian version of the Grammys proved without a doubt that the Canadian Music Industry has a lot to learn.

For those of you who watched it in the comfort of your own home, consider yourselves lucky. I spent the afternoon in a crowded press room watching the majority of the show on a monitor and watching the winners ushered in to be grilled by the onslaught of reporters representing every music-oriented publication under the sun. And what of the losers? Well, we will never know because they were never brought around. I guess the promoters felt that they would bring everyone down. This was a particular disappointment to us because Blue Rodeo were two time losers. Now call me biased but I would think that they would be a main press attraction, and yet none of us were allowed anywhere near them.

What bordered on the insane was the manner in which we were to request interviews. We were given a small ballot on which we wrote the performer whom we wished to speak with and placed it into some magic box that eventually disappeared and was never heard from again.

I also have to question which awards were given out on air and which were given out behind the scenes. While the television audience was treated with such awards as best aboriginal record, best country performer and best classical performance, the awards for best new group and best hard rock group were handed out behind the scenes. For those who want to know the best hard rock award saw I Mother Earth win. The best newcomer category saw the Waltons edge over Sloan, Junkhouse, Tea Party and the Odds. Incidentally, it would have been fairly cool to interview any of the aforementioned bands who didn't win.

In a surprising twist, I found myself quite entertained by the presentation surround the Hall of fame induction of longtime Juno dominators, Rush. It is no secret that they have never been one of my favorite bands but their career longevity, success and desire to remain and play in Canada must be respected and applauded.

As for that whole business about best international album, given each year to some chart topping flavor of the month, I think that the whole process should be forgotten. If there is one good thing about the Junos it is that it is a celebration of Canadian music and giving some award to Whitney Houston who would never even think to come and pick it up, seems somewhat contrary to that ideal.

In the general scheme of thing however, it is my belief that the awards only mean something to those who live and die over the success of their album sales or are slaves to promotion. Any band that lives to create its own and is content to simply play live and survive would probably not care too much over a triangular piece of glass.

The bad of the 1994 Juno Awards

Saturated with Urge Overkill

by Dave Bullard

Urge Overkill played the Palladium on Sunday, March 13th, along with Red Red Meat, and Eugenius. The show had its highpoints and low points. The Palladium seems to have corrected its sound problems which were evident at the Buffalo tom show a week before. Unfortunately, not enough tickets were sold (a great surprise), so the balcony was not opened up. (The balcony is amazing).

Concert Review Urge Overkill The Palladium

Red Red Meat was a satisfactory opener. The band played a thirty minute set but never really seemed to attract the attention of the crowd, which was impatiently waiting for the other two bands.

Eugenius played a crowd-pleasing energetic forty-five minute set. Eugenius has a pop sound that puts a smile on the face of any listener. Songs like "Breakfast" and "Dumb Bunny" which are well crafted pop songs, got the attention of the audience. A forty-five minute set isn't long enough for a band like Eugenius on the verge of breaking into the charts. I would have to say that the crowd was at the Palladium to hear Eugenius as much as to hear Urge Overkill. The show would have been better had only these two groups played, both getting equal playing time.

Urge Overkill deserves some, but not all, the critical acclaim they have received. "Saturation" is a very good CD and Urge Overkill is a powerful live band, but there are many other bands that also deserve the hype Urge Overkill has had in the last year (the Catherine Wheel). A Urge Overkill worked their way through a well put together set of seventeen songs. "Sister Havana," of course, got the biggest response from the audience. I must admit that when I hear Urge Overkill, I think of 70s Kiss. Maybe it's just me. The "old is new" sound, used by bands like Urge Overkill, Blind Melon, and Lenny Kravitz, is refreshing but should be taken only in carefully administered doses. It scares me when a band like Urge Overkill can get on stage and perform Neil Diamond songs. I hope I haven't thoroughly thrashed Urge Overkill- I actually do like them a lot.

Going from top to bottom, Roch Voisine, the Master of Ceremonies for the evening and winner of the best male vocalist category. Underneath Roch is last year M.C. Celine Dion, this year's recipient best female vocalist. Below her is The Rankin Family taking home the awards for Canadian entertainer of the year, sponsored by Molson Breweries) and Country Group or duo of the year. Below this family is this year's winner of the best new group award, sponsored by FACTOR, the Waltons. All performers were excellent and congratulations goes to all the Canadian winners of the evening. All photos above are by Jennifer Peter. Special thanks goes to Chart Toppers and the Publicity House.

Three bands that will either delight or fright your musical pleasure

by Dave Bullard

Construction For The Modern Idiot, by the Wonderstuff is an album where the thought process behind it is evident. Emotions run high on almost every song: some are full of rage and while others are rather positive. The lyrics are just incredible, and the instrument mix balances them out. Miles Hunt has an exceptional voice, and it is a welcome change to listen to a CD where the listener can understand what the singer is singing. Some of the outstanding songs on the album are "Full of Life (Happy Now)", "Storm Drain", and "On the Ropes". The best way to listen to the album is to listen to it all the way through without skipping a song.

Construction For The Modern Idiot is the first album I have ever seen where comments have been left in the liner notes. This gives the listener an idea of what the song is about and where it comes from. It is a hard CD to get into, because the first few songs are rather short. Nonetheless, this album is near-flawless.

I had a hard time getting into reel'n'roll by Rawlins Cross. I took a chance on the album on the basis of the title track, which I love. After this one song though, the album did not keep my attention. I enjoyed hearing the bagpipes, an instrument that seems to be coming into vogue these days. Unfortunately, though, the sound does get a bit repetitive. I feel that the album is missing something. I think it's the fact that the album just glides along without another song that has some punch to it (like "reel'n'roll"). The live performances by Rawlins Cross have gotten excellent media reviews. Maybe seeing the band live would lead to a greater appreciation of this album. I like the sounds of the Rankin Family, another East Coast band, but Rawlins Cross just doesn't work for me.

C.D.'s Review The Wonderstuff Construction for the Modern Idiot Rawlins Cross reel'n'roll Lost and Profound Memory Thief

Memory Thief is a very good album where various styles are blended together to come out with a strong finished product. Lost and Profound are hard to label; the band mixes country, rock, a touch of pop and a sprinkling of ballads. Lost and Profound definitely has a versatile sound. The album itself is mellow-but not too mellow. There are songs on the album to make sure the slower songs don't turn off the listener. Terry Tompkins and Lisa Boudreau, who have voices that compliment each other, share the vocals. Stand-out songs on Memory Thief include "Invitation", "Miracles Happen", and "Hole In The Mirror". Even though Memory Thief has only ten songs, the length of the songs, the song-writing itself, and the production of the album make up for it. Memory Thief will be noticed by those who appreciate song-writing.

Some of this country's most creative minds are in Canada's insurance industry.

They're the kinds of minds that know creativity goes far beyond art, literature or making movies. If you're like that, why not consider a career with Canada's property/casualty, or general insurance industry? The industry offers a wide variety of career choices for creative minds. Accountants yes, but also systems analysts, lawyers, managers, loss prevention engineers, investment specialists, investigators, marine underwriters, aviation adjusters and many more. The choice is yours.

General insurance is also an industry that encourages you to acquire its own levels of professionalism. As a Fellow or Associate of The Insurance Institute of Canada, you would join an educated, experienced and ethical group of professionals equipped to pursue successful careers at the local, provincial, national or even international level.

Choice, challenge, satisfaction and security. They are just some of the rewards you'll enjoy through a creative career in the property/casualty insurance industry.

Heavy metal and a great guitar

by Mark Makowich

If you are a fan of loud, chunky guitar, screaming solos, in your face vocals and double-bass percussion that ripples through your veins, then the place to be last Wednesday night was the Palladium. Sepultura put on a show that I am sure left many of their fans with moderate to severe hearing damage.

Concert Review Sepultura The Palladium March 16

Sepultura is currently on tour promoting their new (and best) album, Chaos A.D. This band has undergone considerable change since they were founded in 1984. Their earlier albums Bestial Devastation, Morbid Visions and Beneath The Remains could all be classified as "speed metal." However, with the release of Arise, and their current album, they seem to have turned away from the speed and turned to a change of pace within their songs. This change of pace, along with the use of many vocal effects, gives Sepultura a unique sound which incorporates harsh vocals and chunky guitar to perfection.

Although the band is capable of producing excellent heavy metal music, their stage dynamics leave something to be desired. I must admit that the show lacked the intensity on stage that their music is suited for. Perhaps a little less head-banging and a little more personality is needed. Sepultura is worth seeing just to be heard.

The human body is considered a microcosm of the universe and is comprised of these Five Elements. Each element is connected with different organs, meridians, and characteristics. Swedish massage therapists use long, flowing hand movements to knead muscles. Shiatsu therapists apply rhythmic and gradual pressure to the meridians and tsubos. Although the pressure is applied primarily with the fingers, practitioners will also use the knees, elbows, toes, heels of the hands and feet, and the pad of the foot. While the amount of pressure applied varies, at no time should there be sudden or severe pain.

A shiatsu massage usually takes 45 to 90 minutes and costs $40 to $75. Since shiatsu is not a registered massage therapy, it cannot be claimed under OHIP. According to Barbara Selkirk, an Information Officer at the Ontario Ministry of Health, "Only allopathic medicine, not alternative medicine, is recognized as a physician benefit by the government."

The Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons also doesn't recognize shiatsu as a medical treatment. A government agency that provides lists of physician referrals, the OCPS will not provide any information on shiatsu treatments nor shiatsu practitioners to the public.

However, many chiropractors believe shiatsu is an effective preventative technique. Dr. Chris Moffatt who owns a chiropractic clinic in Mississauga agrees: "Combined with conventional chiropractic methods, shiatsu is one of the most accessible forms of alternative therapy. The art of massage brings relaxation and relief from stress and healing to the body."

Most shiatsu massages take place on an exercise mat on a carpeted floor; the firmness of the floor helps the therapist bring the weight of his body into the tsubos being pressed. Unlike Swedish massage, no oil is used and the client usually remains clothed.

The session begins with the client lying on his back. The therapist first treats the Hara, the area between the rib cage and the pelvic bone which is considered the central storehouse for the body's qi. The therapist will also treat the legs, arms, neck, head, face, back, feet and hands.

Some areas of the body may feel very sharp when massaged, like a pinched thumbnail. Other times, a dull pain is felt, as if the area is bruised. Often, only the sensation of a firm pressure is felt.

"I could feel the heat through Leny's fingertips, and I was surprised by his light touch," says Sheila. "I haven't been for a professional massage in years because other masseurs have hurt me in the past. For days after a treatment, I would have more pain than before I went to the masseur."

After treatment, the client usually feels very relaxed and tired, which is the body's way of telling the person to rest for maximum benefit. One of the most common reactions to treatment is that the kidney and urinary systems are stimulated and the need to pass water is more frequent. Clients also experience a feeling of warmth due to an improved blood supply.

Ten years ago, few Western physicians took acupuncture and shiatsu seriously. Many doctors considered these techniques no better than cures like wearing copper bracelets to treat arthritis. However, people unknowingly use pressure therapy in every day life. We grit our teeth when in pain (applying pressure to the zones of the teeth) and grasp the sides of a dentist's chair to try and ease discomfort (applying pressure to the zones of the hands).

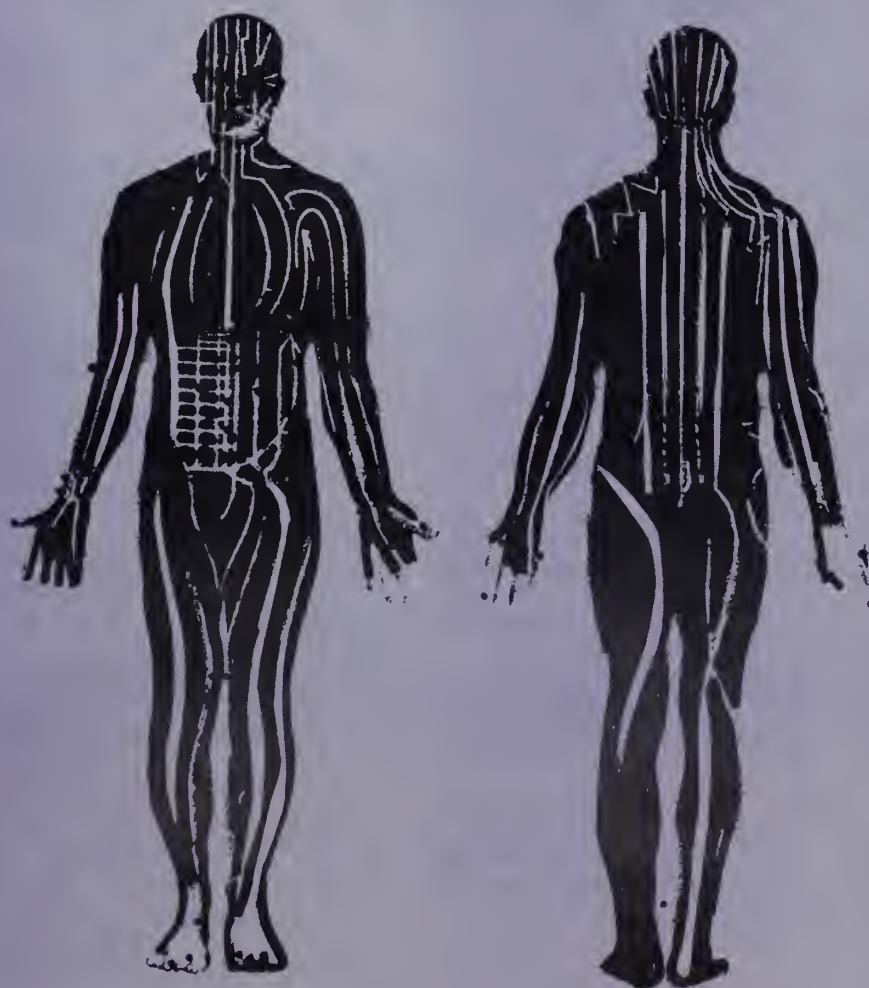

Probably the biggest disadvantage of shiatsu is its simplicity. People are skeptical about the fact that all sorts of different problems can be alleviated through massage. To a certain extent, shiatsu is a therapy which you can try on yourself, but best results will be obtained from a certified practitioner.

Sheila Cowan agrees. "I am 48 years old and most people in their forties are looking for their second wind as they prepare for the hardest and fastest lap in the race of life. Since beginning treatment, I now feel more relaxed and more prepared for tomorrow. My first session at the Tse Rjen Shiatsu was my 48th birthday present to myself, and it was the best gift I've ever received. And, my feet don't ache like they used to."

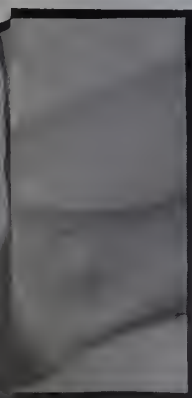

Tsubos are magical buttons

Tsubos are the points along the meridians where the body's qi accumulates. Most tsubos lie close to the skin's surface along the front and back of the body.

The shiatsu therapist aims to free trapped energy from these points. According to practitioners, anyone can learn to find at least some of these points—you may feel a tingle or twinge by pressing on one.

I have two years experience as ECSU Social Programmer and 1 year of being ECSU Vice President of Finance, as well as multicultural associations such as the Markham Multicultural Association and the Markham Multicultural Youth Association.

Besides the social aspect of student life, I feel that ECSU should also concentrate on creating more services or enhancing the services that already exist. I also feel that ECSU should promote and showcase Erindale students in their many talents. At the very least, ECSU should try to offer a forum for our students.

I see my responsibilities being in three parts: First as a representative of every student, I must make sure every students' vote is heard. Approachability is a key; Second, I see that one of my responsibilities is to make sure ECSU is run smoothly, everyone is treated fairly, the directors are working on their respective portfolios effectively and the meetings are efficient. Most of these terms would have fallen under the VP Administration position which was done away with a couple of years ago, therefore feel that I should bear these responsibilities;

Thirdly, a responsibility is to act as a liaison between the students, ECSU and the Administration.

By living in residence, my accessibility has greatly increased because I'm right where the students can find me. My three years of ECSU experience will help me run things smoothly because I already know how things operate, or should operate. And my three years experience has already allowed me to build a relationship with the administration. Some of my goals are to continue work on the pub and concentrate our services such as raising the awareness of different cultural groups i.e. for Black History Month, Ramadan, etc. Enhancing the Radio Station is also one of my main concerns.

I am running for this position because I feel that my experience can be an asset to ECSU over the past three years I have been committed to enhancing student life I can do more at this capacity. Erindale is a great place, I want to make it better.

Over the years I have been involved as a leader in many organizations: in high school as Vice-President and in the following year as President of the Students' Administrative Council. I was also founding Chairperson of the school board's Union of Secondary Students' Administrative Councils. In addition, I have had extensive involvement in Mississauga's Mayor's Youth Advisory Committee in the capacity of Executive Vice-Chairperson, Chairperson of the Priorities and Planning Committee, Co-Chairperson of the Mayor's Youth Conference, and the Mayor's Youth Representative to the Mississauga Committee on Obscenity and the Mississauga Crime Prevention Association. My experience also extends to Erindale as two-time (Co-) President of the Italian Club of Erindale, Chairperson of ECSU, Chairperson of the Green Committee (which serves to unite administration, all student governments, clubs and committees on campus), a member of the Erindale College Council (2 terms), a member of the Erindale College Teaching Awards Committee, a member of the ECSU Student Endowment Award Committee, as well as a scrutineer for an ECSU by-election.

ECSU must commit itself to completely serving the needs of students. Members must become more in-tune with the needs of today. This can only be achieved through dedication to openness and communication. Students must become more aware of what their elected representatives are doing. Students need to be more informed of the happenings on campus and the services that are available to them. Only through productive communication can services, administrative tasks, and social events improve, leading to a more fulfilling student experience.

As the position of V.P. Administration no longer exists, the position of President not only serves as a leader, but as an administrator as well. The President must be an effective liaison between the student body and administration always committed to the betterment of student life. The President must be an effective leader among his/her fellow council members.

Communication is the key! As a leader at ECSU it would be my goal to provide other directors with constructive, co-operative, and conciliatory communication. It is my commitment to keep everyone involved: fellow council members, administration, and most importantly, students. Students have a right to know how their money is spent. I am completely dedicated to all of this.

I sincerely believe that one must make a conscious effort to participate in society. I have been living by this philosophy for many years. Through the skill I have obtained throughout my involvement in the community I am confident in my abilities to achieve these goals and effectively represent the students as their President.

Director and Co-Executive Internal Manager of O.F.S.A.S. (The Ontario Federation of South Asian Students), President of A.C.E.-Erindale (The Association of Collegiate Entrepreneurs). I organized, in conjunction with the other Executives, seminar events, membership drives and private business ventures, to name a few. I am a fourth year Industrial Relations Student, thus I have been exposed to an interdisciplinary approach to the study of Unions and Management.

To ensure a fulfilling student experience at Erindale, I will make it my responsibility to further develop an appreciation of the diversity that exists in the student population. Canada has, for the most part, decided to take the approach of being mosaic. If that is truly the case, then we as the leaders of the future must learn to appreciate each other and value the importance and contribution everyone makes to our society.

My responsibilities as ECSU President are as follows: to act as chief facilitator of the direction of the ECSU Council and serve the concerns and issues of the student body; responsible for the efficient management and operation of the Blind Duck Pub; assist ECSU Directors in any endeavors, and projects they are involved in; the general management of the ECSU office

Prior to submitting my nomination sheet for ECSU President, I conducted a student survey in which questions were asked to find out what students wanted from the future ECSU members. The major issues raised were as follows: a 'Job Fair' more diverse and responsive than the current Career Day; lobbying the Administration and Provincial Government to voice opposition to further tuition increases; better quality undergraduate education; improving the Student Safety Services currently already in place; increasing quiet and group study facilities available after the library closes (after 11 p.m. during the week); 24 hrs. accessibility to additional Apple (Macintosh) computers, currently locked up after hours in the Computer Centre; opposing any efforts to close the 'Smoking Room'; improving the Pub facility; and increasing the visibility of the activities ECSU conducts.

I truly believe in the importance of the student union, and the role it serves as the voice of Erindale Students. By working to implement a truly RESPONSIVE government, via 'direct', 'objective' and unbiased consultation with students we can work to better meet the true 'needs and wants' of students within the constraints we face in today's climate (political, economic, etc.), and thus strengthen the legitimacy of ECSU as the Student Union which represents all 6000 (approx.) full-time students at Erindale.

My qualifications are as follows: three years experience with ECSU: as Academic Director 1993-94, experience working with ECSU for two years, have been trained through leadership conferences, organized peer panels at Academic Orientation, student representative to organizing the time line and proposal for next year's orientation, Chairman for the Library Enhancement Fund, Chairman for the Student Endowment Award, active member on the Quality Service to Students group, member of the Erindale College Council, student representative to the Erindale response to the TRI-campus planning report, student representative on the Teaching Excellence Awards committee and member of the Academic Affairs Committee of ECC.

As President of ECSU I hope to overcome student apathy on campus and across U of T, use the ECSU page of medium II to inform students on the matters and issues of ECSU, upcoming events and Clubs' activities, reinstate Student Appreciation Days on a more regular basis to provide a venue for students to offer comments complaints and other concerns.

As President I am responsible for being an effective liaison between the Administration and the students of the college to lobby for student concerns and issues, provide experienced leadership and direction through teamwork of the executive to fellow council members in the fulfillment of their duties, fairly representing student concerns as brought to council and acting promptly on them, maintain accurate records of the dealings of ECSU for future reference

If elected I will work as a team with the VP Finance in introducing concerns to administration as they arise, demonstrating to the council how working as a team with a goal in mind will always result in that goal, launch public awareness campaigns to educate and confront issues of concern to the students of Erindale, initiate regular checks and measures to ensure that mistakes aren't made, items aren't overlooked and through consulting auditors on a regular basis ensure that student's money is being spent responsibly.

I feel that the experience I have, coupled with my extensive experience with ECSU will improve the level of student services provided for now so that a higher standard of service is available to future students. I have enjoyed what I have accomplished as Academic Director and working on ECSU as a team member, I feel that I, along with the future VP Finance, am capable of leading such a team to attain the goals outlined here and more.

Along with my strong analytical, decision-making and problem-solving abilities, I have extensive educational qualifications in accounting and financial analysis. Through my four years in the Commerce Programme, I have specialized in accounting and completed all the courses that would eventually lead to designation as a CA. I have completed the Canadian Securities Course with Honours (the basic legal requirement for an investment advisor). In high school, I received the Year 4 Advanced Business Award, the Certificate of Business and academic Awards of Excellence. More importantly, I have practical experience in finance. I perform accounting duties for my incorporated family business. In my part-time job, I have assumed managerial duties. As well, I am the present Treasurer for the U of T Italian Club of Erindale and am responsible for its finances.

ECSU should play a more active role in the social life on campus. It should work to promote more interpersonal non-academic interaction between students. ECSU should act in an advisory role to students with regards to university matters, and it should provide active and efficient representation on behalf of students to Administration.

I believe that the position of VP-Finance holds the following responsibilities: to provide efficient and effective financial management, not just simple book-keeping; maintain accurate records and make intelligent, well-informed decisions; promote efficiency and fiscal responsibility and keep ECSU and students informed about its financial status and act in a responsible advisory role.

If elected, my goals would be to provide true value to students for their money. If money is received from students, then it should be spent on students and student needs. I believe in "open books, open policy". As VP-Finance, I will not hide ECSU's finances. Records will be accessible to anyone who asks. It is your right to know what is happening to your funds. I will be open-minded to all ideas and suggestions. I will provide proper periodic statements, publication of financial activities, a comprehensive review of all spending, research and budget overviews for all projects, proper organization and record-keeping, and an efficient financial requisition system.

The position of VP-Finance would allow me to make use of my extensive financial background. I feel I am qualified for the position not only through my studies, but, more importantly, through my real-world experience. Working on ECSU would allow me to give back something to the Erindale student community in a way that is suited to my skills.

For the past two years I have been involved with Orientation. This is ECSU's biggest event, and I will be participating again next fall, whether or not I am elected. Although I have not served on council before, I am familiar with its procedures and activities.

ECSU needs to be more accessible to students. A lot of people feel that ECSU is a clique. Steps need to be taken to heighten ECSU's profile on campus and improve the quality of its services to students.

The Annual Rating of Courses and Academic Orientation will definitely involve the most work. These jobs must be dealt with early in the summer to ensure that the A.R.C. is published on time and a peer panel is arranged for orientation. The Academic director is also responsible for sitting on a number of committees, including the Quality of Student Services Committee and the Library Enhancement Fund.

I would like to make sure that the A.R.C. is published as soon as possible. There is no point in having a student opinion survey if everyone is already signed up for their classes. I will also try and arrange for an 8:15pm shuttle bus to bring Erindale students back from the St. George campus at night. This would prevent some students who have late classes having to wait for the last bus.

My three years at Erindale have been very rewarding and I view this as an opportunity to give something back to the school. I have volunteered for a number of ECSU events in the past but I would like to take advantage of a lighter course load next year to work full time at improving undergraduate life.

The qualifications I have relevant to this position are: Director of Advertising and Employment 1992-93 Erindale College Student Union, Mayor of Erindale College Residence Council 1993-1994, Member of the Erindale College Council 1992-1994, Member of the User Committee for the Student Centre 1993-1994, Chairperson of the Ridesafer Committee 1992-93 and Member of the Personal Safety Committee 1992-1994.

The role that ECSU should play to ensure a more fulfilling student experience is one of accountability. ECSU must be made visible to students in order that they are given the opportunity to educate themselves on where their funds are going. ECSU has a responsibility to listen to the demands of their constituents. When suggestions are made, they must be given priority. ECSU should not be run for the benefit of the people on the council but for the students who elect them.

The main responsibilities of the position of Academics are to put out the Annual Rating of Courses booklet on time, organize academic orientation, chair the Student Endowment Fund Award Committee, Library Enhancement Fund and liaison.

I think the key to fulfilling the responsibilities of the academic position of ECSU is experience. Holding office at the same time as being a full-time student can be nerve-racking. The academic director has responsibilities that absolutely must be completed otherwise the student body will suffer as a result. My previous experience on ECSU as well as sitting on and chairing committees has supplied me with the knowledge to organize my time so that I can fulfill all of the tasks required.

My reason for running for ECSU is plain and simple: I enjoy putting in my extra time and using my experience for projects that will benefit Erindale as a whole.

SOCIAL PROG. CANDIDATES

I held a position on the rowing club for this past year and the upcoming year which is at present being renamed as fundraising and promotions.

ECSU should provide the foundation from which Erindale campus spirit can be built. Also, it should act as the voice of the student body to administration. But most importantly it needs to be responsible for all its expenditure decisions.

The Social Programmer needs to choose the right events for the correct time period and make sure that they are planned and promoted well in advance of the date set.

Pick the right events: look to the past, Manish learns from history; ask students, Manish picks up vibes; check financial risk, Manish checks his wallet and his pals. Choose the right time: certain times of the academic year are hot for social events and some are not, Manish does not gamble on long shots; during the social sluggish periods, Manish tinkers with low budget experimentation e.g. scavenger hunt; making sure of planning and promotion, Manish says, Just Do It! NOT!, Do It With Passion.

Let me make this clear. The hourly wage, if it were worked out, would be well below the minimum wage. Also, the title "Social Programmer" is not glorious resumé material. On top of this, the student body is suffering from "apathy", thus doom looms over this position. It all adds up to challenges. Manish loves challenges and gets satisfaction out of curing problems.

Being a member of the ECSU ADVERTISING COMMITTEE, I have attained first-hand knowledge and experience in the implementation of school events and advertising for ECSU. I have worked closely with ECSU directors, gaining an intimate understanding of how ECSU operates. I am attending ECSU's weekly board meetings, and have interviewed its current Social Programmer for a full explanation of his position, and each event that he has worked on. As ADVERTISING DIRECTOR of the International Cultural Awareness Society, the third largest club at Erindale, I having planned and implemented advertising and promotions strategies for its events, and am a voting member of its board of directors. I have shown excellent school spirit at Erindale, by participating in many of its clubs and activities. I am on the ERINDALE COLLEGE ROWING CLUB, the Archery Club, and the F.O.B's Ball Hockey team, as well as actively participating in the numerous seminars, parties, and dances held by various other Erindale clubs.

ECSU belongs to you, the students of Erindale College. It should provide you with the academic and social tools you can use to enhance your university experience. Every student at Erindale possesses an opinion and idea on how things should be run. ECSU gives you the guidance and methodology to put these ideas to action. You can express your ideas at a board meeting, join a committee, or simply speak to a director about your idea. Because ECSU allows you to run your own life on campus, it gives the power to the students.

Your Social Programmer must give you the events and activities that will benefit you the most on campus. These extra-curricular activities should form a valuable part of your education. Thus, the social programmer must organize all events keeping you in mind. However, to keep you in mind, the Social Programmer must find a method to find out what you want from campus life. The social programmer must make sure you don't just come out of university with numbers and facts, but with interpersonal and communication skills, great memories, and excellent friends that will be with you for the rest of your life.

As Social Programmer, my first priority will be to increase the interaction between ECSU, and you, the student. I will create a Social Projects Committee that will survey you and your fellow students, and find out what events you want, and how past events can be improved to suit your needs. Thus, every one of you will be given the opportunity to have a part in the assessment of each event. And by having the events you want, the more successful they will be. As Social Programmer, I will divide the organization of each event into three distinct parts. I will carefully plan, implement, and evaluate each event: during the summer, a full layout of every college event of a social nature for the coming year, along with its budget, must be presented to the board of directors of ECSU for evaluation, upon commencement of the school year, the implementation of each event occurs. Upon the completion of the event, a full report evaluating the success of this event will be produced. This report will be produced with the assistance of the Social Projects Committee. The report will contain important recommendation for how such events will be dealt with in the future. This process builds upon itself, as the implementation of the next event takes into account the success of the previous one. Thus, the plans for each event will go through a constant state of refinement.

I have made the most out of my University experience by taking the initiative to get involved and meet new people. I now see the need and the opportunity to provide you with a new and refreshing outlook on student government.

I have assisted in the coordination of various activities for the Greek community of Toronto. For the past three years I have been involved in building and decorating sets for the Thessaloniki Karavan Pavilion, putting my artistic capabilities to work. I have worked extensively in the restaurant business providing me with public relations experience, and allowing me to work in a team environment. I also run my own part-time business. As a fourth year Erindale student, I am a member of C.A.S.E. and the G.S.A. and intend on pursuing a career in advertising. I am a motivated individual, dedicated to my work, a strong team member, committed to serving the Erindale student population.

ECSU's role is to respond to the needs of students, by providing a comfortable environment. It must coordinate more student activities and involvement the majority of the Erindale population consists of commuter students. Thus my job is to provide maximum exposure for ECSU events in order to keep students on campus and to have them participate in activities instead of losing them to off campus establishments. As a director I must act diligently, honestly and act in the best interest of the student body. I will also be responsible for and coordinate all advertising for ECSU events and employment positions. I will be responsible for enforcing all ECSU advertising and communication policies. Finally, my position requires clear communication with fellow directors as well as team work. It is my duty to attract students to campus events, which will be done by increased exposure. Advertising for events is currently restricted to the Meeting Place. Banners and signs have to be displayed at various strategic locations around campus. The ECSU information board along the five minute walk is currently under utilized. I would like to see it used more often as it is an excellent location to relay information to students.

Every week, hundreds of students attend the pub facilities, therefore we must take full advantage of this and use it to advertise.

Building a mobile and portable information board would help in all these cases, placing it in different locations around campus during the day.

Finally, ECSU has many employment opportunities available to students. Ads for these positions are limited and must be increased. As Advertising and Employment Director I must advertise not only events but employment positions, as well as hiring all employees. Employment opportunities are for everyone and must be equal and fair.

I am interested in involving all students in campus activities, allowing everyone to take advantage of all opportunities available at Erindale. Because I plan to pursue advertising as a career, I am highly motivated and sincerely interested in fulfilling my duties as an ECSU director, serving the student body.

I want to be involved because I will make a difference.

My experience within the political spectrum has been being a member of the Ontario Junior Parliament and within Erindale I was a member of the Erindale

College Council last year in 92/93 and I know some of the Problems and concerns at Erindale. My involvement within the realm of advertising is within the Mississauga softball league of which I not only coach but also promote. I have also worked prior to this at the Scott Mission.

ECSU, which stands for Erindale College Student Union, therefore representing the students is the prime directive. In order for ECSU to fulfill this prime directive, the students have to be aware and knowledgeable of what is occurring on their campus. As a member of ECSU, I will be visible to the student body so students can become aware of the benefits that ECSU can accomplish for them.

Within the realm of Advertising and Employment, the responsibilities are numerous and time-consuming. The main responsibility is to let the campus know what is happening at their university. This can be accomplished by the use of posters, billboards, flyers and residence drops to ensure that all can be aware. Another responsibility is to enforce all ECSU advertising and communication policies. What this entails is that all advertising must be stamped by an ECSU authority and put on the appropriate wall. A further responsibility is to be a placement officer for ECSU casual labour. Within this sphere of employment the student body must be aware that employment is available to them. These jobs not only include permanent jobs such as the information booth, but also temporary employment such as working for 'Imaginus artwork'.

Next year I will be a part time student therefore I will have more time to give to ECSU and also be able to lend my assistance to other ECSU members if they require assistance. One of the goals I have for this position is to get people involved. The best way to do this is to advertising, encouraging students to get involved.

The reason I am running for Advertising and Employment is quite simple. For the past few years I have attended Erindale College and have been able to view the problems and complaints of the students. Instead of just sitting on the fence, I decided to make a difference by trying to resolve some of these problems. Also, I know I can handle responsibilities effectively and one that reviews things in a logical manner, sort of like Spock. Through the Advertising and Employment portfolio, I hope to show students what their campus is all about and to be aware of activities and events that they can attend and be a part of.

ECSU is student-run meaning FOR the students. ECSU should be more attainable for students to approach and possibly give new suggestions, as well as feedback.

The main responsibilities of the Advertising Employment Director are to ensure all events at Erindale are well publicized so that each student is aware of them and ensure their success. Another aspect is to offer employment opportunities.

My goal, if I am elected, is to ensure that student participation and the university experience is made more attainable for all.

This would be accomplished through mass promotion and advertising. However, I will make sure I am available to all to provide information, to answer questions and concerns.

The university experience is not just books and exams...it also combines new friends, pub nights and other social events to make these years more memorable! I love participating in extra-curricular activities, but sometimes I don't know what's going on. I am running for this position with

PUBLIC RELATIONS CANDIDATES

Greg Arnocki

Relevant to this position, Public Relations Director, I served as Service Director on the Students' Administrative Council (SAC), Erindale for the 1992-1993 school year. This gave me the opportunity to become more familiar with the administrative process at the university. Further, my specialists degree in communications with a minor in writing should aid me in being an effective student representative on ECSU.

ECSU's role is to help familiarize new students with life on campus and to provide meaningful and enjoyable events to enrich all students' experiences, both socially and culturally, at Erindale.

The main responsibilities of this position are to the students and Erindale College: to act as liaison with the outside community and to arouse interest in college events for students.

To carry out these responsibilities, I plan to increase contact with the U of T main campus, as well as our sister university, Pennsylvania State. I will try to arouse interest in and draw more attention to events, such as Orientation, the Home Coming Parade, and the Blood Donor Clinic.

Because of my experiences on SAC and the knowledge I have gained from university, I feel that I can make a valuable contribution to ECSU and to the experiences of the students of Erindale College.

I feel that I am fully qualified to fit the position of Public Relations Director. I have the skills to aid ECSU in becoming a more efficient student-serving operation. I call ECSU an operation because I believe ECSU is a serious and legitimate instrument of student aid. I am currently the President of For No Reason: a club that exists to promote the artistic talents of Erindale. I was also President of fine arts and the communication of individuals within the arts community itself.

I feel that ECSU needs to be more visible in their business of enhancing student activities on campus. This is why I am running for Public Relations Director. I feel their is great need to be more visible, it is not my implication that ECSU is not performing its role, but simply that it needs to be more visible in order to give students tangible evidence that work is being done on campus to enhance students' lives.

Again, the greatest need is to establish a good relation with the student body. There is a need to make the Public Relations Director more accessible to the students, and to the public as well as the community that surrounds Erindale. The community that surrounds Erindale should better benefit students of Erindale.

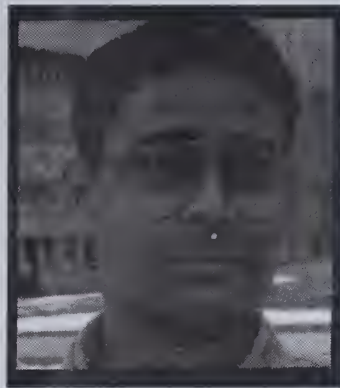

First of all, "I promise to do my best." There, you have it on paper. I said it. I think that using medium II and Radio Erindale more extensively is a must to increase student awareness. I also think that promotion of these two mediums will help them to grow and flourish into mediums of desirable natures. I also intend to establish open lines of communication with the community that surrounds Erindale to bring them more services like the YMCA program.

I have been affiliated with several clubs at Erindale, the most recent being the Caribbean Club. Prior to 1993-94 school year, I also worked quite extensively with Amnesty International in a public relations capacity.

I believe there is a need for council members to be more visible to the student body as a whole. Simply having office hours is not enough since the majority of students at Erindale are unaware of the functions of E.C.S.U. and of the benefits to be gained. Greater awareness of these roles will also ensure against lack of candidates as seen in past elections.

I believe the responsibilities of Public Relations Director as laid out by the E.C.S.U. Handbook to be rather simple. In fact, they are so simple that I believe that any of the candidates running for this position will be able to do an adequate job!

The reason why I believe I am best suited for this position is not because I can dramatically improve the efficient handling of this position, but rather the time I will have as a part-time student will allow me to help with the many special projects that arise and require a major cooperative effort from the student council.

For the last four years I have bitched about E.C.S.U. and their policies. I decided that in my last year of university I was going to try and do something instead of just bitching.

I have volunteered my time to ECSU for the past two years and have worked in conjunction with the sponsor, social, and Special Projects Director regarding both the planning and actual implementation of programs and events themselves. During my secondary education years, I participated in Student Council.

Working with the council this year, I have observed a lack of intent at times regarding certain members, although, this problem has been slowly corrected. I have come to realize that ECSU should ensure that the voices of the entire student body are heard. ECSU directors need to work more as a team to ensure that the lack of effort exhibited by one or more members should not affect the quality the council serves to students as a whole.

The position of Special Projects Director is one whereby events, policies and other various activities are pursued on behalf of the graduates. The Director must ensure that graduating student's needs are met to ensure that the memory of the university experiences will live on. Special Projects Director works in conjunction specifically with the academic and social director in order to ensure the success of events. The Special Projects Director is also responsible for their own portfolio which allows individuals in this position the freedom to pursue initiatives which arise as student concerns and needs develop throughout the year.

I elected, I will personally work with all the ECSU directors as a team. Though this position also enables the Special Projects Director to work independently, I plan to offer my assistance to the other directors who may need help with special events, programs etc. I would also like to establish a committee of graduating students who will work alongside the Special Projects Director. This should allow the graduates to express themselves and their ideas thus giving more input. I would like to continue student Appreciation Days, having as many as possible, also have more students get involved with ECSU, and in planning special events. With regards to ECARA, I would like to get involved with the intercampus Ball Hockey Championship and listen to their concerns. I would like to organize Euchre and gaming tournaments for the entire student body. These are just a few of my new proposals.

I feel that students should be able to benefit from their ECSU directors by having them accessible and available to them. I am prepared to be effective and accessible to their needs and I feel that my experience working with ECSU is sufficient to provide this. I have volunteered for many organizations like the Red Cross, the Heart and Stroke Foundation and the Toronto General Hospital and from my experiences I have acquired communication skills which aid me in relating to my peers. Being a student during these tough economic times, I would like to do whatever I can in order to make university life easier for students by continuing student appreciation days (free donuts and coffee, provide special coupons in medium II, Euchre tournaments at the pub, expanding on the used book data base).

Since being an active volunteer for EYC (a youth council) I have organized projects dealing with fundraising, food drives, a recycling program and a youth forum on post-secondary education. Currently, I am beginning a new project that focuses on the environment; the project entails cleaning up Mimico Creek. I have been and continue to work (as a volunteer) for Jean Augustine, the Liberal M.P. in my riding, wherein I have been given the opportunity to help organize projects relating to her 1993 campaign, as well as community events.

ECSU should partake a three-fold role: assume the role of TEAM PLAYER; rather than try to compete, ECSU should work together with clubs and students. This would help revert the stereotype that ECSU does "nothing"; assume the role of ACCOUNTABILITY; being responsible for its actions or lack thereof; assume the role of ACCESSIBILITY. All roles combined would help ensure a more fulfilled student experience.

There are two main responsibilities: to keep the issues, concerns, and ideas of the students as top priority and to encourage all students to be a part of the events that will be fun and interesting.

If elected my goals are: to coordinate joint efforts between Clubs and ECSU; to hold events that are well publicized and properly organized and to provide a more diverse range of special projects that will bring all students together.

I am running for special projects director because I want to

Erindale reigns as champions...again

by Tamara Wickens

Erindale's Innertube Waterpolo team defended a championship title against SMC in a match resembling the Olympic hockey final.

In an intense game where both teams were evenly matched, goals were traded back and forth.

The game began with SMC garnering a 3 goal lead; Erindale realized they had to regroup and play a solid defensive game. They not only made up for the point deficit but headed into the final 5 minutes with a 2 point lead. Alison Wood and Esther Levesque turned in excellent offensive performances, scoring 2 goals each. Erindale had many scoring opportunities which added more intensity to the game.

Defensively, the team played well until the latter half when they allowed 2 SMC goals, enabling SMC to tie up the game at the end of regulation time.

According to the rules, the teams would then play two 5 minute overtime halves. Again, both teams displayed skill and determination. Both teams traded goals to end the overtime with another tie, 2-2.

It all came down to a shootout. Choosing their top shooters, Alison Wood, Esther Levesque and Karyn Saunders, Erindale felt confident in their ability to maintain their status as champions.

SMC shot first and missed. Esther Levesque was Erindale's first shooter. After psyching out the goalie she scored a beautiful goal in the upper right corner, giving Erindale a one-point lead. SMC scored on their second shot, while Erindale's Karen Saunders missed the net. The game was tied.

It came down to Alison Wood. There was no pressure at all: only a championship on the line.

These are the champions. Pictured are Karen Saunders, Alison Wood, Jenn Peter, Lara Dyke, Kim Applin, Esther Levesque, Tamara Wickens, Emily Pilon and Coach Kelley Kirk.

Wood came through for her team, which became UofT's Innertube

Waterpolo champions for the second year in a row.

Congratulations to the whole team.

Div. I hockey Warriors to face MEDS in finals

by Ted Henley

The Erindale College Men's Ice Hockey team defeated Engineering 2 games to 1 advancing to the finals. Despite a lack of practice in the second half of the season, the team pulled together and will play against Medicine in the finals.

In the first game of the series Erindale came out flat, not playing up to their potential: Engineering dominated the match winning 4-0, shocking the Warriors.

With the first game in the back of the players' minds, the Warriors came out with a vengeance in the second. The final score of the game was 2-1 for the Warriors; however the score does not reflect how well Erindale played. Scoring for Erindale were Wayne Bartelink from Jon Wawrow and Bart Wilson from Bartelink. By the end of that game the Engineering squad was exhausted and content to move on to the next and final game.

The final game was the deciding factor: the winner of this game would advance to the final. By the end of the first period Erindale had an early 3-1 lead. Scoring for the Warriors were Mike Vidas, Bart Wilson and Nando Berti. Coach Greg

The Warriors are one of three teams who made it to the finals this week. They will face their rivals, MEDS in the final.

Dobson instructed the team to go into a defensive shell hoping to protect the Warriors' lead. This was a mistake. Engineering came back to tie the game at three but Jon Wawrow scored for Erindale to give them a 4-3 lead.

With less than two minutes left, Erindale received a penalty and had to finish the game short-handed. The Engineers pulled their goalie to get a two-man advantage. The fans were on the edge of their seats. Erindale was scrambling around at the end of the game until the buzzer finally sounded, ending the game and the series.

Erindale won an exciting series that had, at first, looked like it would be an upset for Engineering. The Warriors now advance to the finals where they will meet Medicine.

Pondscum to play MEDS in finals

by Gabe Galambos

The Men's Waterpolo team earned their way into this year's championship final with a 7-3 victory over a strong Engineering squad. This win sends them, a second year, to the finals, a best two-out-of-three against MEDS, who defeated Pharm/Knox in the other semi-final match.

This was a close game from start to finish despite the lopsided score. Erindale was able to swim away with the game using their speed and better ball control over a physically intimidating opponent. Pascal Tyrrell, Stanley Besko, Rekha Trembath, Alison Wood and Gabe Galambos were the goal scorers for Erindale, backed by an outstanding performance in goal by Stephen Mazza. Condolences go to Jason Ovsenny for failing to extend his scoring streak to seven games; although he did come close hitting the cross-bar once.

Pondscum looks forward to avenging last year's loss to MEDS in the finals.

Young Guns topple All B's hope of finals

by Kais Aziz, Mike Prencipe,
Sergio Carvalho

Young Guns 2 All B's 1

The Young Guns came out victorious, applying most of their pressure throughout the whole first period, though not managing a single goal of the 16 shots they fired the All B's way. Craig Lawlor supplied most of the offense for the Guns, but the game highlight was the outstanding play of the All B's goalie George Koumbidis who made several game-saving stops to keep it close to the end. The first period ended scoreless. Ken Hartman's goal, at 2:34 in the second half gave the Young Guns a much deserved 1-0 lead, their tenacity finally paying off. The Guns, however, made a crucial mistake by sitting back on their lead and it cost them. On the All B's second power play of the period, Affik Choudbury scored on a beautiful out-of-bounds pass with 6:20 left to play in regulation time. But the Young Guns refused to lose this game. They once again took control and with only :59 left, Craig Lawlor assisted on Alex Mankowski's low blast from the high slot which eluded a partially screened Koumbidis. The All B's had an opportunity to comeback with 10 seconds remaining when they took their goalie out but could not score. The shot total was 32-14, with the deserving team coming out on top.

Team Vu 5 Untouchables 4

What started off as a tentative game turned into a real thriller to the end.

John Sutherland opened up the scoring early in the first for Team Vu. Amrit Chohan then answered back for the Untouchables but this was short-lived as Chris Cuddy of Team Vu scored 25 seconds later. Simon Howard scored a goal off an Untouchable player's helmet. Vishal Sud cut the margin to 3-2 with his goal at 16:10 but Howard, who had a solid game on defense, scored his second of the period with only :24 seconds left giving Team Vu their 2-goal lead back.

All the goals in the second half were on the power play. Two early power play goals by Dave Guiliani and Amrit Chohan tied the game at 4. Team Vu turned on the power play in the second. Incredible pressure eventually led to Dadufalza's goal which held up as the game winner. The Untouchables, who managed seven shots in the first and five in the second, refused to pull their goalie; a decision which may have cost them the win.

Mrs. Buttafuoco 6 Underwater Firefighters 4

On paper these teams looked about even, with Mrs. Buttafuoco having a better offense and the Firefighters having the better defense and goalie. The game was played with playoff intensity, and at the half it was tied 2-2. However, it seemed by the second half that what's on paper doesn't always show during a game. Tom Mannery, one of the premier goalies in B division, let in 4 second half goals, including 3 by Derek Williams who ended up scoring the put away goal even as the firefighters made an attempt for a late comeback. Mike Critchley showed alot of heat with a 4-point effort for the Firefighters, but it just wasn't enough.

have not suffered a defeat this year. Both teams came out in full force, trying to tally the all-important first goal. Rob Bukovcan opened the scoring for BBC on a power play goal which seemed to spark his team. However, minutes later a controversial goal by Maurizio Sciola seemed to calm things down. The Streethawks showed some uncharacteristic discipline throughout the game and were rewarded with a 2 man power play in the second half. Andy Chiodo responded for the Streethawks with a goal that proved to be the game winner. Although they seemed distraught after the goal, BBC showed no signs of quitting, applying all kinds of pressure. Unfortunately for BBC, the Streethawks solid defense did not allow for many shots on Allen Ferreira. Andy Chiodo's second power play goal on a beautiful tic-tac-toe play with a minute to go in the game put BBC's comeback bid to rest.

final berth after their comeback win over Del Lords. Sons of Jor-El took an early 1-0 lead on a goal by Jon Greer, and it appeared an upset was in the making. However, the Lords quickly erased that marker and went on to build a 5-3 half-time lead on the strength of Dave Petrelli's 4 points. In the second half, SOJ took a page out of the Florida Panthers' book on how to play patient hockey by shutting down the Lords' offense and quietly mounting their comeback. Their patience finally paid off late in the game as Maciek Walicht scored the equalizer; shortly afterward, John Greer netted his second of the game for the win.

Charlie's Angels 4 Predators 3

For the second game in a row, the Angels managed to pull off a close 4-3 victory over their opponents. Gurt Pawan and Harpreet Singh gave the Angels an early 2-0 lead, but Rohan Whyte quickly erased it with 2 goals of his own. Gurt Pawan regained the lead for the Angels, and then Harpreet Singh scored his second game winner on a beautiful breakaway goal. Down 4-2 late in the game, the Predators were awarded a two-man power-play, resulting in a goal by John Meyer. Unfortunately, the Predators were unable to capitalize on their other power-play opportunities and fell short of equalization. The win for the Angels sets up a rematch with their division rivals, the Young Guns.

DDWU 3 Chainmen 1

Frank Barrese netted 2 power-play goals and Paul Paradine added 3 points to lead the Ducks to a 3-1 victory over the Chainmen. Player of the Game was without a doubt, goalie Dylan Riendeau, who made some illustrious saves to preserve the win. The loss by the Chainmen forces them to come from behind in the second game: something they are unaccustomed to doing.

Devilled Eggs 7 Still Smokin' 1

Gokhan Hasken scored 4 points, including an expected natural hattrick, to lead the Devilled Eggs to a 7-1 romping over Still Smokin' in the first game of the series. Mike Vidas chipped in with 2 goals and Mike Metelsky added a goal and an assist. It appears that the Devilled Eggs will advance to the final-barring a total collapse in the second game.

Team Vu 6 Mrs Buttafuoco 3

Simon Howard and Jason Bond scored 3 points each to pace

Team Vu to an easy 6-3 victory over Mrs Buttafuoco. Team Vu were all over Mrs. B for most of the game, resulting in a 4-1 half time lead. However, penalty problems allowed Mrs. B to score 2 late power-play goals to make the score somewhat respectable. Scoring for Mrs. B were Dan Batista and Dave Uba with 2 goals in a losing cause.

Killer Bunnies vs. Squared & Buried in women's finals

by Tamara Wickens

The semi-finals in women's ball hockey got underway this past week. Everyone gave the spectators some great hockey. BITW and Squared & Buried faced off in two intense games and S&B are in the finals this week. The Killer Bunnies played the Funky Divas and will also head into the finals this week. Come out to see some great ball hockey.

Series #1

Squared and Buried 4 Best In the World 3

In the first of a two-game series, Squared and Buried faced BITW, the only team from the Smythe division to make it into the semis. Glenda Jones initiated the scoring on a pass from Jill Hudson early in the first half. This was followed up by a goal from Brenda Jones. BITW's Beth Bennett had an unassisted goal late in the second half to close the gap to 1. Brenda Jones added another marker for S&B in the last 3 minutes. Louise Anthony scored for BITW in the last 23 seconds of the first half, making the score 3-2 for S&B. The second half consisted of end-to-end action with intense play from both teams. Marion Hendry scored for S&B, while Fio Rainusso scored for BITW. The series ended with S&B earning a 1 point lead heading into game #2. Louise Anthony earned team MVP for her team by playing solid shifts.

Squared and Buried 3 Best In the World 2

Both teams provided spectators with some great offense as well as aggressive play. BITW went scoreless for the first half, while S&B scored twice on goals from Laurie Bamford and Brenda Jones. Like the first game, there were many penalties, by women's standards. Scoring in the second half was Marion Hendry for S&B. Shelley Donaher and Lori Bordeau scored for BITW in the second half, but were unable to make up their point deficit, allowing S&B to advance to the finals. Congratulations go to both team for two excellent games and for making it to the semis.

Killer Bunnies 4 Funky Divas 1

In the first of another two-game total point series, the Funky Divas held the top-ranked Killer Bunnies to within a 3 point lead in a fast-paced, intensity filled match. Both teams were evenly matched in the first half, as they played well defensively, holding their opponents to only one point. Scoring were Leanne Marco for the Bunnies and Cuc Duong for the Funky Divas. Unfortunately, however, the Funky Divas could not hold the Killer Bunnies any longer. Leanne Marco, Kelly Kazarian and Kirsti Haaka scored for the Bunnies. The Funky Divas still had room for a comeback.

Killer Bunnies 4 Funky Divas 4

For the first time in two years, a team tied the Killer Bunnies in the last semi final match. Cuc Duong is the Player of the Week in this series for scoring 3 of the Divas' goals with such grace, many of us watched in wonder.

She scored at 17:11 and then again at 16:17. Kirsti Haaka scored a terrific goal from a near-parallel angle to the net while Leanne Marco and Laura Szarga rounded it off. Susie Velisavljevik scored the final goal for the Divas. The Killer Bunnies now head into the finals to face Squared and Buried. Congratulations to the Funky Divas on a well-fought match. The progress of the Funky Divas should be commended.

This scene will soon become history, until next year.

ECARA election results never cease to amaze

After making several attempts to encourage students to vote in this year's ECARA elections, I was once again let down.

This year a whopping 362 students voted in the election. If we look at the numbers we can logically deduct that a little over half of Erindale's Ball Hockey league bothered to vote. Isn't it interesting

Revelations

by Tamara Wickens

that more people show up to play intramurals than they do to vote.

If we look at the last three ECARA elections you will notice an interesting development: voter turnout is on the decline and acclamations are on the incline. In the 1991-91 election, 686 students voted; in the 1992-93 election, 524 students voted and there were no acclamations. This year there were 6 acclamations and less than 6% of Erindale's full-time population voted.

What can be said about this that hasn't already been said? I am very tired of the word apathy. I am also very tired of reminding students that they have the right to vote. I am unsure whether or not students are disinterested or are they just unsure about when the elections are?

I am probably more apt to favour the excuse that students are just not interested in how ECARA spends over 50% of their incidental fees. That's $500,000. Not exactly petty cash.

Cullen hasn't been fairly treated in Leaf land

The recent decision by Maple Leafs' President Cliff Fletcher to place center John Cullen on non-recallable waivers, is one that has left many, including Cullen himself, shocked and dismayed. There is no doubt as to the reasoning behind the move. It is no secret that coach Pat Burns likes grinders which Cullen is not. Also, the Leafs blamed any ineptitude on a lack of a second line center, which Cullen was supposed to be, and finally, there is the issue of his salary. Cullen, who's paycheques have more zeros than his recent scoring numbers, was thought to be a little high considering his output as of late.

People should be reminded though, that Cullen has not been treated completely fairly by those in Leaf land. Upon first arriving in Toronto, Cullen was greeted with a generous amount of ice time with such players as Wendel Clark and Nikolai Borschevsky, (as it was felt that anyone could produce with number one center Doug Gilmour). Cullen responded with the play that they hoped he would when they dealt a second round draft pick to Hartford for him. Scoring at about a point a game pace, Cullen's season ended prematurely when he was smashed head and neck first into the boards. Diagnosed as having a ruptured spine, Cullen was relegated to spectator until the playoffs in which his injury forced him into only limited action.

However, an off season of rehabilitation and healthy productive linemates (Clark and Rob Pearson) saw a rejuvenated Cullen once again score at a pace that helped the Leafs win seemingly at will. The trio proved to be as good a line as any number two squad in the league, and maybe even better than some number ones. Luck however was not on Cullen's side as both Clark and Pearson were felled by injuries. Relegated to playing with wingers such as Kent Manderville, Mark Grieg, Glen Anderson or any other low to mid grade player, Cullen saw his production slip markedly until he was also a member of the injured reserve.

Recently, when it looked as though he would be ready to return, he found that he was no longer wanted. The veritable man without a country, now finds himself disappointed and disillusioned. As the trade deadline looms over the heads of some players like a black cloud, it could prove to be the ray of hope that Cullen needs to resurrect his floundering career. As teams like Florida and San Jose find themselves still in playoff contention, Cullen may find himself heading South for the rest of the winter.

The treatment of Cullen by the Leafs is curious when you consider that Glenn Anderson, who lives in the same salary range as Cullen, has proved to be lazy and enigmatic for the past three seasons and has yet to be scratched from even one contest. One has to wonder why two players with such similarities would be treated so differently. The Leafs front office did not even tell Cullen of his release. He was informed via the front page of the Toronto Star sports page.

What does the future hold for John Cullen? If he remains untraded after Monday he will remain a Maple Leaf, but in name only. It is clear that his future lies elsewhere and it may be a while before it is determined where and when that future will take place.

A Most Baffling 'Water and Wine' Puzzle
Mr. Percy Poindexter, the Famous after-dinner puzzle expert, is at his wit's end trying to solve the old Water and Wine puzzle. It goes like this: You have two glasses each filled with exactly the same amount of liquid. One contains water, the other, wine. First take a teaspoon of water from the water glass and pour it into the wine glass. Next stir the wine and water until well mixed. Then take a teaspoon of the water and wine mixture and pour it into the glass of water. The question now is: is there more wine in the water glass than water in the wine glass, or is there less?

Dice Puzzle - Before you pick up the dice, secretly moisten your right forefinger across the face of one of the dice. Now, place the second die against this moistened face, and press the two dice together with your thumb and forefinger. Still holding the two dice like that, place them across the die on the table and let go. The two dice will stick together and stay balanced on top of the third die. Once again, you've made your point!

Puzzle #582 - You can reach the front row center seat with as few as five apologies using the route laid out below:

ANT AGONIZER

Trace the only path this ant can take if he is to distribute the morsel of food equally into his seven storage dens. At no time may the ant travel through any passageway more than once during this task.

SPOT AND GO

Select two of the four black spots and trace a connecting path linking an equal number of spots of each numerical value. Example: If your course includes the numbers two, three, five and eight, it must contain the same amount of each of these numbers. Observe all partitions, only travelling horizontally or vertically to adjacent circles. At no time may any circle be used more than once.
